Doomsday Warning Opens Energy Fight

PRESIDENT CARTER Controversial Proposals

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's warning of an impending energy doomsday is drawing praise from congressional leaders, but many doubt he can win approval of stringent conservation measures.

Congress is now awaiting the details of Carter's energy conservation program. He will his expected call for higher taxes on energy sources.

"It will be the toughest fight of his four years in the White House," said Sen. Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn. And House Majority Leader Jim Wright, D-Texas, said, "conservation is necessary but it's only half the job I hope he couples his conservation preachments with goals for cutting energy consumption by 1985. But he declined to discuss specifics of his proposals, beyond noting that "citizens who insist on driving large, unnecessarily powerful cars must expect to pay more for that luxury."

However, general details of Carter's proposals have already been disclosed and congress-deliver his legislative proposals to a joint House-Senate session on Wednesday.

In a televised address Monday night, Carter grimly warned of an energy disaster unless Americans accept hardships now. "Many of these proposals will be unpopular," Carter said. But he said the alternative "may be a national catastrophe."

Still, interviews with congressional leaders following the President's address indicate Carter will have an uphill fight in getting many of his proposals through Congress, especially some practical programs to stimulate the development of new energy sources.

Wright predicted much controversy over many of Carter's proposals and lengthy congressional hearings, saying he doubted House action on the package could come before "September at the earliest ... it's not going to happen overnight."

In his address, Carter said the nation is running out of oil and gas and that his plan will require sacrifices of all Americans.

Carter spelled out various sional leaders are set to get a White House briefing today on the final package.

The President's program is expected to include stiff taxes on new fuel-inefficient cars, with offsetting rebates on those with good gas economy; a standby gasoline tax to begin in 1979 that could add 30 cents a gallon to pump prices; price increases for domestic oil and natural gas, and tax benefits for homeowners and businesses for installation of insulation or solar energy devices.

Meanwhile, one congressional source said the final draft of Carter's energy program may call for a phasing-out of all price controls on oil by 1979 and on natural gas by 1981.

A draft of Carter's proposal, circulated last week, indicated he was considering a new tax on domestic oil production that would bring prices to refiners up to the current world-market price by 1979.

And, the draft indicated Carter might recommend continued price controls on natural gas, both over the interstate market and the now-unregulated intrastate market, while allowing gas prices to rise.

These formulas have been modified somewhat in final revisions made by the White House and "it is my understanding that the President is now prepared to phase out these price controls," the source said.

Rep. John Anderson, R-Ill., a member of the House GOP leadership, joined Democrats in calling Carter's speech "very effective."

But, Anderson added, "somehow, to me, it had the ring of an all-too-familiar message that has been heard before but has been largely ignored." Anderson said he doesn't think Carter's message really convinced Americans of the severity of the crisis.

And he predicted Carter's biggest difficulty in getting new energy taxes approved would come from "many prominent Democrats," especially Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich., and Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash. Both Anderson said, "have long lambasted the idea that American

Berrien Must Hire Back Six Workers

By JIM SHANAHAN
City Editor

A U.S. Department of Labor regional administrator has told Berrien county to reinstate six people "who have been deprived of their employment and wages because of discriminatory treatment based on their race." The notice is from Richard C. Gilliland, regional administrator in Chicago, and concerns six former (NYC) workers whose jobs were terminated last April. The county board of commissioners voted at that time to dissolve the NYC and consolidate it with the Berrien Youth Service and Assistance Bureau (YSAB). The jobs were federally-funded and a complaint was filed with the labor department by Ocie Mitchell, NYC director at the time of the county board's action, and five other NYC workers. Gilliland said in a letter to Mitchell dated April 4, 1977, the county has a right to a hearing, and if a hearing is requested reinstatement and payment of back wages would be suspended pending outcome of the hearing.

Nancy Clark, chairman of the Berrien county board of commissioners, said this morning: "We have turned this matter over to our labor attorney for his evaluation." The attorney is Jack Clary of Grand Rapids. The NYC jobs were funded by the federal Comprehensive Employment Act (CETA). The county board of commissioners is the prime sponsor for CETA. Other NYC workers who lost their jobs and on whose behalf the complaint was filed, are Carl Brown, a former Benton Harbor city commissioner; Patricia Wilson, Peggy Reed, Janet Young, and Janice Davis. Mitchell said two other NYC employees had been hired by the youth services bureau. Gilliland wrote Mitchell that the labor department's investigation showed that termination of the employees "had an adverse and negative impact on the racial composition of the Berrien County CETA staff."

Gilliland said the Berrien CETA staff had imposed a barrier to employment by imposing a college degree requirement. He said the six minority people had records of successful job performance in programs funded by the Department of Labor.

"We have determined," Gilliland said, "that the prime sponsor should provide relief consisting of reinstatement, back wages and retroactive seniority to the six complainants who were deprived of their employment."

Benton Group Out To Kill Pay Board

BY MIKE WYNGARDEN
Staff Writer

A group of Benton township residents has launched a petition drive aimed at shooting down a proposed compensation commission that would set salaries for the township's elected officials.

Creation of the appointed five-member compensation commission was approved by the township board of trustees March 15 and will go into effect May 14 unless the petition drive by "Concerned Citizens of Benton township" forces a referendum on the issue.

"We feel that the citizens want to retain their right to vote on elected officials' salaries at the annual township meeting every April," said Cecilia

Burke, spokesman for the organization. "The compensation commission would in fact not only restrict the right of the people to vote, but actually annul it."

Mrs. Burke said the 12-member group conducting the petition drive, which was formed Saturday, needs signatures of 5 per cent of the registered voters in the township, or 514 people, on petitions to obtain a referendum vote.

As proposed, the compensation commission, beginning in 1978, would set salaries for elected officials for periods of two years. The salaries would become effective each April 1, the start of the township's fiscal year, unless the salaries were rejected by a two-thirds vote of the township board.

Creation of the compensation commission would do away with the current method allowing township residents to vote on pay increases for elected officials at the township annual meeting in April. At the annual township meeting April 2, residents rejected a 40 per cent salary increase for Supervisor Cathryn Sirk and a 20 per cent salary increase each for Clerk Larry Trail and Treasurer Ken Malkin.

Members of the group seeking petitions are identified as Mrs. Burke, 971 Ramona drive; Rev. Elbert Brown, 1601 East Empire avenue; Kenneth Platt, 1627 Broadway; Beverly Rutkowski, 137 Eloise drive; Hubert and Florence Rachnig, Roslin road;

Michigan Baptist Homes Still Operating At Loss

By JIM SHANAHAN
City Editor

Michigan Baptist Homes, Inc., has listed assets of $17,096,437 and liabilities of $12,359,519 in its bankruptcy proceedings in U.S. District court, Detroit.

Statements also have been filed on continual operational losses on the four retirement centers operated by Michigan Baptist homes, including Whitcomb Tower, St. Joseph.

St. Joseph Atty. J.D. Hartwig, who attended a meeting of creditors in court yesterday in Detroit, said reports were filed of a cash flow deficit of $130,000 in April alone and that losses for the retirement centers totaled $702,000 in 1976.

Hartwig said that of the declared assets, $15.5 million is real estate of the retirement centers including $3.5 million for Whitcomb tower.

The liabilities of $12.3 million do not include life leases issued by Michigan Baptist Homes. The leases have obligations of more than $4 million, according to Hartwig.

Hartwig said he represents several of the 1,300 creditors of Michigan Baptist homes. Attendance at yesterday's proceeding was so big, the session was moved to a larger courtroom with Judge George Brody declaring it the largest crowd he's seen in 17 years of bankruptcy cases, Hartwig reported.

Yesterday's proceeding was the first meeting of creditors and the case was adjourned until June 2. Hartwig said the debtor, Michigan Baptist Homes, filed a statement of affairs yesterday, and Alton Curtis, the firm's president testified. Hartwig said Curtis was unable to provide complete information which is scheduled to be produced on June 2.

No creditors' committee was appointed yesterday because Michigan Baptist Homes objects to life lessees being considered creditors.

Hartwig said statements showed taxes billed on Whitcomb Towers center in Detroit were $138,000 in 1976 and $60,000 for Hillside Terrace in Ann Arbor. There were no property taxes for Whitcomb Tower but $8,826.48 were billed in lieu of taxes, Hartwig said.

Michigan Baptist Homes also operates Olds Manor in Grand Rapids. There are 840 units in the four homes and actual occupancy is 473 units, Hartwig said.

Michigan Baptist Homes was placed in receivership after filing a petition last month under Chapter 11 of the Federal Bankruptcy act.

Patricia Hearst Awaits Sentence

By LINDA DEUTSCH
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Patricia Hearst faces a possible prison sentence of 15½ years to life or could be released on probation following her plea of "no contest" and acceptance of a guilty judgment on charges of armed robbery and assault with a deadly weapon.

The 23-year-old heiress, who insisted she was forced into a life crime, was ordered to return here May 9 for sentencing. She is free on $1.25 million bail pending appeal of a bank robbery conviction for which she received a seven-year sentence.

District Attorney John Van de Kamp, who approved the plea bargain with Miss Hearst's lawyers, told a news conference, "The judge has a wide area of sentencing discretion." He said he made no promises regarding sentence in striking the plea bargain.

Appearing at a hastily arranged hearing Monday, Miss Hearst made her surprise plea to the two gravest counts of an 11-count indictment. The district attorney dropped nine other counts of kidnapping, robbery and assault.

Surrounded by bodyguards, the pale slender heiress was hustled into the courtroom where she stood before Superior Court Judge E. Talbot Callister and whispered the words, "No contest."

Deputy District Attorney Sam Mayerson, informing Miss Hearst of her rights, asked if she realized her "no contest" plea would be treated as an admission of guilt.

"Yes," she said in the same soft whisper.

Her parents, newspaper executive Randolph Hearst and his wife, Catherine, sat silently in the spectator section. Her attorneys, Al Johnson and Sydney Irmias, appeared to flinch as the judge declared, "I find the defendant guilty."

Miss Hearst's chief attorney, F. Lee Bailey, who repeatedly vowed he would not allow her to plea bargain, was conspicuously absent. He had contended during her San Francisco trial last year that her status as a kidnapping victim made her blameless in subsequent crimes.

A jury, rejecting Miss Hearst's story of fear and duress, convicted her on March 20, 1976, of robbing the Flibertina Bank along with members of the Symbionese Liberation Army.

The heiress to a publishing fortune had been kidnapped by the terrorist SLA on Feb. 4, 1974. Later, she declared her allegiance to the group and fled with them into the radical underground where she lived as a fugitive for nearly two years.

She was arrested Sept. 18, 1975, at a San Francisco hideout. Her fugitive traveling companions, SLA members William and Emily Harris, were

$71,000 Is Granted To Legal Services

The office of Sen. Donald Riegle (D-Mich.) announced Monday that the U.S. Legal Services Corporation has authorized $71,000 to refund the Berrien County Legal Services Bureau for nine months. Atty. Edward Yampolsky, director of the bureau, said the funding period started April 1. The legal services bureau, 901 Port street, St. Joseph, provides legal assistance to the poor in civil matters.

Yampolsky said the U.S. Legal Services Corporation is the principal funding source for the Berrien bureau. He said the bureau has sought funding through Blossomland United Way but has been denied. The U.S. Legal Services Corporation was chartered by Congress to grant federal funds for legal aid to the poor.

Behind The Shelter For Illegal Aliens

Except that they abound in the U.S. like the grackles along the southern Lake Michigan shoreline, nobody knows how many illegal aliens they are in our country, exactly where they are located or what they do for a living.

The Immigration and Naturalization Service has few statistics to go by.

In 1967 the Service expelled about 152,000 visitors. Last year this number rose to approximately 800,000.

The Service guesses the number outside its net at anywhere from 2 to 20 million.

The only other guess which does not require substantial documentation is that the illegal entry comes almost entirely from Mexico.

The Mexican population is gaining over the country's economy by leaps and bounds.

Only the Army has the manpower to patrol the Rio Grande border.

Between this economic pressure and Washington's unwillingness to fence off the border, what 20 years ago was a trickle known as wetbacks has turned into a flood.

This past weekend at a conference in Houston, two Carter spokesmen, Labor Secretary Ray Marshall and Leonel J. Castillo, the White House nominee to head up the Service, announced a startling solution to the problem.

Carter, they said, will present Congress in the next few weeks a proposed amnesty for those now in the U.S. visas, work permits or other official documentation and some kind of a plan to shut off further invasion.

Tossed in for good measure is the thought of going after American employers knowingly hiring illegal aliens.

This has been a sore point with the AFL-CIO for years. It claims many U.S. employers hire the illegal alien for less than the federally mandated minimum wage or what would have to be paid under union negotiated contracts because the alien is afraid to protest because it would reveal his illegal presence in this country.

The announcement by Marshall and Castillo contained an interesting comment as to the economic effect the illegal alien may be exerting within the U.S.

No data is yet available, they said, to show whether the illegal alien is taking a job from a U.S. citizen, thereby adding to the officially tabulated unemployment rate, or if he merely is working at an assignment the unemployed American worker would not accept.

If the former prevails, the protest against the illegal alien has merit.

If the latter holds, the illegal visitor is contributing to the domestic economy.

The theoretical contribution is not a total gain. If an unemployed person will not take a job, his erstwhile employer is stuck with unemployment compensation insurance or the public is saddled with another welfare case.

The Marshall-Castillo statement stressed that the proposal puts Carter's human-rights philosophy to work here at home, that uprooting the illegal alien is basically wrong, is to promote prosperity worldwide so that our country will not appear to be one of milk and honey to unemployed foreigners.

Reporters have to pass along the remarks of those staging a press conference, otherwise they would be accused of slanting the news.

Readers and editors, however, are not obliged to accept comments at face value.

The amnesty plan is Carter's idea of threading his way through two thorn bushes.

A wide scale deportation of illegal aliens would arouse the Latino voter.

It would also create a chilled atmosphere with the Mexican government which is fighting an uphill battle to reinvigorate its nation's economy.

Mexico is one of the few solid friends the U.S. can count upon presently in the Latin American countries.

Some Foreign Datelines Can Bring Good News

For most American newspaper readers, a foreign dateline is a harbinger of bad news, whether it be racial turmoil in Rhodesia and South Africa, terrorism in Argentina, or nagging economic problems in Britain. But from time to time there is genuinely good news from abroad. India's recent return to parliamentary democracy, for instance. Or Portugal's successful effort up till now to establish democratic institutions after half a century of dictatorship.

During his visit to London in January, Vice President Walter F. Mondale telephoned Portuguese Premier Mario Soares to congratulate him for his work in behalf of democratic government. Now Soares is scheduled to meet with President Carter in Washington on Thursday, April 21, just four days short of the first anniversary of the elections that brought Soares' Socialist Party to power.

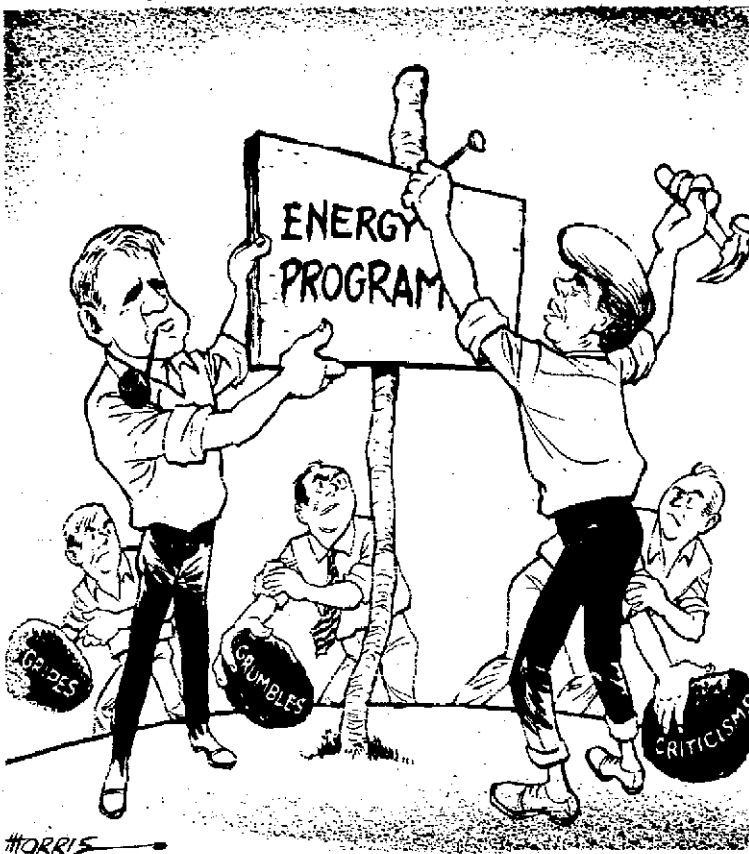

Because of the number of parties involved, the Socialists received no sweeping mandate. They captured 34.97 per cent of the popular votes to 24.03 per cent for the centrist Popular Democratic Party, 15.91 per cent for the conservative Social Democratic Center and 14.56 per cent for the Communists. The remainder of the vote was scattered among nine small parties, most of them on the extreme left. Nevertheless, Soares ruled out a coalition with any of the opposition parties on the ground that it would split his Socialist constituency.

Economic assistance no doubt heads the list of things Soares wants to discuss with Carter. Portugal was the poorest country in Western Europe even before the loss of its "overseas provinces" of Angola and Mozambique. Trying to care for the thousands of Angolan and Mozambican returnees has taxed the country's limited economic resources and added to existing political tensions. Soares has managed to prevail over these problems thus far, but he may well argue that American aid is essential if Portugal's fragile democracy is to survive over the long run.

JESUS FAR FROM A FAILURE

Editor,
In regards to the article in this paper April 9, of Michael Grants, statement on research of My Lord And Savior Jesus Christ.

I strongly oppose his statements and firmly disagree with his research. Because I firmly believe if he would have read these next few statements, his research would have come out different. In no way do I believe that he would have been calling My Lord And Savior a failure.

Here is a man who was born in an obscure village, the child of a peasant woman. He grew up in another obscure village. He worked in a carpenter shop until He was 30, and then for three years he was an itinerant preacher. He never wrote a book. He never held an office. He never owned a home. He never had a family. He never went to college. He never put His foot inside a big city. He never traveled 200 miles from the place where He was born. He never did one of the things that usually accompany greatness. He had no credentials but Himself.

While still a young man, the tide of opinion turned against Him. His friends ran away. One of them denied Him. He was turned over to His enemies. He went through the mockery of a trial. He was nailed to a cross between two thieves. His executioners gambled for the only piece of property He had on earth while He was dying — and that was His coat. When He was dead He was taken down and laid in a borrowed grave through the pity of a friend.

Nineteen centuries have come and gone, and today He is the centerpiece of the human race and the leader of the column of progress.

It is far within the mark to say that all armies that ever marched, and all the navies that ever were built, and all the kingdoms that ever reigned, put together have not affected the life of man upon this earth as powerfully as has that one solitary life, Jesus Christ.

Storm Brewing Over Standards

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — Who determines the length of your shoelaces? The width of your auto tires? The ingredients in your house paint? The specifications of your lawn mower? The size of your door frame? The design of your children's car seat?

The answer to each of these questions is identical: One of the virtually unknown but very powerful organizations whose authority to establish "voluntary industrial standards" allows them to exert enormous influence over the daily lives of all Americans.

There are several hundred such groups in the country, which have set rigid product standards for no fewer than 35,000 items ranging from hair dryers and football helmets to machine tools and nuclear reactor controls.

The field is dominated, however, by the American National Standards Institute (ANSI) in New York and the American Society for Testing and Materials (ASTM) in Philadelphia.

ANSI, ASTM and the nation's other standardization and certification organizations are about to emerge from obscurity because a coalition of senators, congressmen and consumer groups is determined to make them more responsive to the public.

Among those preparing for a major confrontation with the standards-setters are Sen. James Abourezk, D-S.D. (whose congressional subcommittee next week opens hearings on far-reaching reform legislation), consumer advocate Ralph Nader and a group of irate House members.

In the last category are Democratic Reps. John D. Dingell of Michigan, David R. Obay of Wisconsin, John E. Moss of California and Richard L. Ottinger of New York, all of whom are indignant about a little-publicized attempt to have the federal government endorse the work of the private standards-setting bodies.

That effort, in the form of a proposed policy statement from the Office of Management and Budget, praises the work of ANSI, ASTM and others as "solidly based and widely accepted" and calls for "federal reliance on such standards whenever practicable." That government proposal "would dramatically increase the already heavy hand of big business in determining what regulations it should be required to meet," says Obay. "It not only puts the fox in the chicken coop, it also hands him a hatchet and a carving knife."

The Center for the Study of Responsive Law, a Nader organization, has discovered that the task force which drafted the proposed policy statement was headed by Frank E. Clarke, an Interior Department official who also happens to be a member of ANSI's board of directors and a past president of ASTM.

Critics of those organizations have marshaled impressive evidence to show that they are dominated — in terms of both membership and financial support — by large corporations whose self-interest often is served by writing standards which exclude the innovative and potentially competitive products of smaller firms seeking entry to the marketplace.

In addition, existing standards-setting procedures often fail to provide buyers with adequate safety and performance information, lack procedural safeguards for those whose products are being tested and minimize consumer participation.

"The American Society of Mechanical Engineers committee responsible for development of (auto) emission test procedures is almost entirely made up of industry representatives," says Robert L. Ajax, an official of the Environmental Protection Agency.

Louis V. Lombardo, head of a Washington group called Public Interest Campaign, found that ASTM's Committee D-2 on Petroleum Products and Lubricants — which writes standards for the gas and oil dispensed at every service station in the country — is dominated by the largest firms in the petroleum industry.

It's not a very pretty picture, but if the upcoming congressional hearings are successful in arousing public opinion, the standardization and certification process may become less of a mystery to the people whose safety, health and welfare depends upon it.

Lakeshore To Seek Additional Three Mills

BY AL AREND
Staff Writer

The Lake school board last night approved seeking an additional three-mill property tax levy for three years in the district's June 13 annual school election. The additional three mills is being sought in an effort to meet an expected 1977-78 operating budget of $5,866,022, without dipping into the district's reserve fund next year.

Even if the three mills are approved, the board in its motion to place the request on the ballot, instructed its administration to trim off between $45,000 and $100,000 from the proposed budget. Board members stood firm on keeping the district's reserve fund equity at a figure they felt the district could be safe with in case of an emergency. This year, according to William Galbreath, assistant superintendent of business affairs, the district used some $320,000 of its $790,000 reserve fund.

"As a general rule of thumb, a district's reserve fund ought to equal around 10 per cent of its operating budget," Galbreath said.

Galbreath had recommended the board seek 2.5 mills and make up the rest by using some more of the reserve fund equity. Galbreath said that one mill would bring in an additional $185,000 in local taxes and state aid, with three mills bringing in some $355,000. Russell Hanson, trustee, said "I want to make sure we have some money in reserve in case major repairs are needed."

If the three mills are approved, the district's total operating millage rate would be 27.876 mills plus 4.4 mills for debt retirement.

Galbreath said the added rate applied to a $40,000 home ($20,000 SEV) would mean an additional $60 a year in property taxes if the issue is approved.

In 1975, district voters approved 16.5 extra voted mills for five years. The new request for three more mills, if approved, would expire in 1980 at the same time the 16.5 mills would.

In other areas, the board approved following its administration's recommendation to leave the school bus stop for Lincolnwood Estates mobile home park where it is currently. A group from the mobile home park had previously asked that the bus stop be moved into the center of the park and off John Beers road for safety reasons. No one from the group was present at last night's meeting.

The board accepted the low bid of $5,675 from General Appraisal Co., Chicago, Ill., to appraise the school system's buildings, grounds and equipment. The district's last appraisal was over 10 years ago, and an update is needed for insurance purposes, Supt. Fred Schmidt explained. The board, upon recommendation of the curriculum council approved, new textbooks for 7th grade environmental science and 8th grade general science.

Mihalik's salary as chief will be $19,550. Gillespie is paid $20,638.

Mihalik is a graduate of the FBI academy and has taken refresher courses offered by the academy.

Mihalik was the first commander and project director of the Berrien Metro narcotics squad. This was an around-the-clock job, and in 200 days in 1973-74 under Mihalik the squad made 151 arrests involving drug traffic.

A native of Chicago, Mihalik was reared in Bridgman. He has lived in St. Joseph since 1946 when he was discharged from the Army.

He served two years as a Berrien county sheriff's officer before joining the St. Joseph department Jan. 1, 1948.

Mihalik and his wife, Frances, are the parents of Nancy, 16, a St. Joseph high school junior; Michael, 20, an employee of City Plumbing Co., St. Joseph; and Linda, 20, a former Nazareth college student who will attend Chicago Art Institute.

Commenting on the appointment, Heppler said it was difficult choosing because he felt all five applicants were excellent candidates for the job.

During the selection process, each candidate was interviewed by a committee made up of Heppler, Buchanan City Manager Paul Sharon and Holland Police Chief Charles Lindstrom, Heppler said.

Mihalik spoke briefly, saying, "I will do everything within my power and ability to maintain the level of integrity that the police department has shown and that the people of St. Joseph have become accustomed to under Chief Gillespie."

In other business last night, the commission authorized newspaper publication of a notice of intent to sell up to $250,000 in revenue bonds.

Money raised would be used as the local contribution for a 70 to 75 slip marina to be built in the Morrison channel of the St. Joseph river. The cost of the marina is estimated at $716,000.

The remaining portion of the cost is to come from a $200,000 state grant and a $318,000 federal grant from the Department of the Interior's Bureau of Outdoor Recreation.

Heppler said the exact amount of money to be sought in the bond sale will not be known until construction bids are taken sometime this summer.

The bonds are to be repaid from slip rentals. No tax money will be used in financing the project, Heppler said.

The project was first

BH Schools' Tax Issues Back On Ballot June 13

Voters of the Benton Harbor school district will vote again at the annual school election June 13 on two millage proposals that failed in a March 15 special election.

The board of education last night voted to ask electors to consider four additional mills for operating expenses, and one mill for school building maintenance. The four-mill tax levy is proposed this time to run for five years. In the March election the four mills were proposed for just one year. The mill for building maintenance

Four people have formally asked the St. Joseph township board to consider them for the trustee position that opened up April 5 with the resignation of Sally Mutz, Supervisor Orval Benson told the board Monday night.

"I hope that this board will be ready at the next meeting (May 2) to appoint a trustee," Benson said. He added that because the board has 45 days in which to fill the vacancy, it could wait until the May 16 meeting to act.

He said he hasn't polled the board and doesn't know who will be the replacement for Mrs. Mutz, who resigned after informing the board that her family is moving to Lincoln township.

Benson said the following people have written the board expressing their desire to be appointed to the position: Gary Young, 3279 Kim street; Ronald Griffin, 3306 Washington manor; Barton R. McCoy, 3386 Locust lane; and Royce Leary, 468 Western avenue, a member of the township planning commission.

"Not only those who have written are in the running," Benson said. "All it takes is a resolution from a board member and a majority vote to choose the new trustee."

Benson also urged the board to appoint two members to the planning commission to bring that body up to full strength. One vacancy has existed for about 18 months, while the other was created by the resignation of Robert DeVries, Sr., at the time he was appointed township treasurer. Vacancies on the planning commission can be filled at the board's leisure, Benson explained.

Also last night the board authorized Township Manager Isadore DiMaggio to ask for bids for furniture that will be needed in the new township hall in addition to the furniture that will be moved from the present hall.

DiMaggio said the furniture includes three desks, bookcases, tables and chairs, filing cabinets and folding chairs. He estimated it would cost between $8,000 and $14,000.

— Voted to apply for federal Comprehensive Employment Training Act funds to hire four people during the summer to help build a softball diamond at Caronde Park and plant trees at Eaton Park.

— Approved a request for a building permit from Berrien Hills country club, contingent upon similar approval from the planning commission. The club wants to add a 12-foot by 25-foot addition onto the Pro Shop.

— Accepted a low bid of $6,432 from Motorola Communications and Electronics for 24 small radios that will be carried by 24 of the township's 44 volunteer firemen. Trustee Carl Reschke said eventually all of the volunteers will have the small radios so they can be reached at home or at work and told of the locations of fires.

In another action, the board adopted a statement of policy to the effect the board will comply with the new state Open Meetings Act, sometimes called the Sunshine law. All meetings of the board will be open to the public, except for executive sessions which can be called in advance by a two-thirds of vote of board members present at a regular board meeting for certain specified purposes.

Immediately after adopting the compliance policy, the board proceeded to call for two secret, executive sessions, one on Thursday of this week at 6:30 p.m. at the district's administration offices, and the other on Monday, May 9. Both closed sessions are to deal with upcoming contract negotiations and the desegregation suit that is scheduled to begin a trial on May 17 in federal district court.

Contract negotiations are slated to begin within the month with the teachers, administrators, secretaries, and paraprofessional employees. All contracts expire this year.

The board last night opted to use cheaper alternate methods for securing the name, age and address of every child and every handicapped adult through age 26. Instead of conducting an annual census, the district will secure the names of children that come into the district and those that leave through real estate agencies, churches and other sources. These names can be added or subtracted from the

Award AAUW Study Grants At Annual Meeting

Honor Branch Member

By ARLYS DERRICK
Women's Editor

Mrs. John (Betsy) Hammond of St. Joseph has been honored by the Benton Harbor-St. Joseph branch of the American Association of University Women with a national AAUW grant in her name.

The local branch will send $300 in her name to the research and endowment fund of the AAUW. Announcement was also made at the April 16 luncheon meeting at Berrien Hills country club that five area women have been awarded $300 study grants.

Receiving the awards were Simi Elizabeth Hicks, Susan Marie Meredith, Ruth Ann Niewyk, Brenda Lee Klus, and Nancy Lee Taylor.

Mrs. Hammond has served several terms on the St. Joseph public schools advisory council, is current chairman of the St. Joseph township library board and a representative to the St. Joseph city library board. She has been a part-time nursery school teacher for six years.

She attended Swarthmore college and graduated from the University of Michigan with an economic major. A member of the Benton Harbor-St. Joseph branch of AAUW for 18 years, she served as its president for the 1972-74 term.

Her husband is a Berrien county fifth district judge. The couple has two children.

Miss Hicks received her bachelor of arts degree from the National College of Education in the field of elementary education. She is working on her master's degree in counseling and personnel from Western Michigan university. Miss Hicks is employed as a third and fourth grade teacher at Millburg school in the Benton Harbor school district.

Miss Meredith received her bachelor of arts degree from Western Michigan university in the field of sociology. She is working on her master's degree in librarianship at WMU and is an assistant librarian, responsible for children's programs at the Benton Harbor public library.

Mrs. Niewyk who earned her AB degree from Calvin college in general studies, is working on her master's degree in educational leadership at Western Michigan university. She is employed as a part-time instructor at Lake Michigan college.

Mrs. Klus who received her AB degree from Hanover college in sociology, is working on her master's degree in counseling and personnel from WMU. Although at present a full time homemaker, she has given many hours of professional service to the Women's Center at Lake Michigan college.

Nancy Lee Taylor received her bachelor of science degree from Western Michigan university in the field of mathematics and her master's of arts degree from WMU in counseling and personnel. She is working on her doctor of education degree in educational leadership at WMU and is employed as an associate professor of mathematics at Lake Michigan college.

Family Roles Changing

Fewer children, longer life, and more working mothers add up to new family roles, new socialization patterns, and a decrease in the differences between the sexes, a University of Michigan professor told members of the Benton Harbor-St. Joseph branch of American Association of University Women April 16.

Lois Whadis Hoffman, professor of psychology at the university, spoke on "Social Change, The Family and Sex Differences."

Two changes for women which have brought changes in the child's socialization experiences, Prof. Hoffman said, are, first, motherhood — childbearing and childrearing — has become come to occupy a smaller proportion of the American woman's adult life, and second, a closely related change, the employment of women, especially maternal employment, has become increasingly common.

Both of these events, she said, have significance for the socialization experiences particularly of girls and they are likely to contribute to a decrease in the differences between the sexes.

The professor pointed out that the reproductive role has been a major factor in determining the status of women in society.

"This is an important point because as we move into a situation where there is greater control over fertility and a smaller portion of a woman's life is given over to reproductive functions, we may find that many things taken as given — many sex differences specifically — are not given but only derived from the fact that women were often and unpredictably pregnant."

Professor Hoffman said that in all societies there are similar sex differences in temperament and division of labor, which "are based on the fact that women are the childbearers and until recently spent much of their lives pregnant or nursing or caring for children. But in the United States today this is no longer the case."

With a longer life span anticipated and more time available for working, more and more women are joining the labor field and maternal employment rates have reached an unprecedented high, Professor Hoffman said. "Over the life span many women already are spending more of their lives in employment than in mothering."

Both of these changes for women, the speaker said, "have significance for the man's role, too, with corresponding adjustments beginning to appear in the form of a more active fathering role and a decreased emphasis on the breadwinner role."

"The discrepancy between these new adult role requirements, and existing socialization practices creates a force for change."

One effect of maternal employment is that the division of tasks within the house is affected and the husband helps more with housework. "The result," Professor Hoffman said, "is not an equal division of labor, the wife still maintains

Elect Officers, Name Delegates

Benton Harbor-St. Joseph branch, AAUW, elected a partial slate of officers at its scholarship luncheon April 16 at Berrien Hills country club.

Mrs. Lincoln (Marion) Larkin was named first vice president for programming for a two year term; Mrs. L.P. (Cathleen) Schweitzer was named vice president for membership for a one year term, and Miss Margaret Baker was elected treasurer for a two-year term.

Officers whose term hold over for 1977-78 include Mrs. Don (Donna) Clark, president, and Mrs. F. Daniel (Linda) Griswold, secretary.

Michigan Division of the American Association of University Women will hold its annual convention in Kalamazoo April 28-30 with members from 71 Michigan branches, representing more than 8,000 Michigan members scheduled to attend the two day convention.

St. Joseph-Benton Harbor branch members planning to attend and who will all be official delegates are Mrs. O.I. (Carol) Harju, Mrs. Griswold, Mrs. Robert (Carol) Haltren, Mrs. Larkin, Mrs. Paul (Barbara) Scott, Mrs. Gladys Burks, Mrs. J.E. (Elaune) Gessert, and Mrs. Schweitzer.

A special display at the convention will be the batik banner designed by Miss Andrea Belski of the BH-SJ branch to represent Michigan at the national AAUW convention scheduled for April June 25-29 in Minneapolis, Minn. The banner was also on display at the luncheon April 16.

Dr. Stephanie Bennett will be the featured speaker at one of the meetings. She is dean of Westhampton college, Richmand, Va., and was previously an assistant professor of English at Albion college.

Hats Beckon In Spring

BY ELLIE GROSSMAN

NEW YORK — (NEA) — Just a minute. You can't go out like that in your eyelet camisole and petticoat, even if it is a warm spring day, trellised all around or cabbage roses, one here, one there, or lilies of the valley, chrysanthemum buds, poppies, daisies, or . . . what do you mean you don't like flowers?

You have to like flowers. They're the biggest news in hats since the pith helmet.

Right, then choose a ballbunt instead of ballbunt, with a crocheted crown, like the one Frank Olive designed for Oscar de la Renta's spring collection, and the smaller version he did for Anne Klein. Take it in white — that's the color this season — and you won't have to worry about matching. You have white? Then choose black, that's good, too.

Now what? You like a portrait or shepherdess brim but it's too much for you because you're short? Well, try a safari hat with a tapered brim, and don't forget about your shoes. The taller the heel, the lower the crown of the hat, that's the rule. And if the hat is delicate, the shoes have to be, too.

But what about your tailored clothes? Nothing to it. A lightweight felt fedora or cloche is very smart and business-like with a patten trim, smart and sweet with a gingham ribbon and nosegay. If that doesn't appeal, go back to ballbunt, with a ribbon trim, or one embellished with beading and eyelet stitching or a metallic designer logo to catch the sun's rays.

The trick is to take your time. Sit down, try them on, don't worry about your wig because the stores are ordering larger hat sizes this year to cover such things.

And be thankful ballbunt is so big because it's cooler in the summer and . . . ballbunt? Oh, sorry about that.

Ballbunt is milliner talk for handwoven straw. (Perbunt is a finer version.) We don't know why they can't call it a plain straw hat, either.

HEAD-HUGGING: White organdy cap, accented with a pale blue velvet ribbon at the crown and a clutch of flower trim at the back will enhance romantic evenings.

WIDE-BRIMMED: Hat with white-trimmed green chiffon scarf at the crown recalls the romantic look of garden parties and "high-teas."

GIANT-BRIMMED: Sombrero beach hat of rough brown straw, highlighted with a chin tie scarf, creates a "south of the border" flavor.

FLOWER FIND

You can't go wrong wearing a flower, or flowers, in your hair this spring and summer. Wind up around a small gold comb and you have the perfect accessory.

MR. AND MRS. ERNEST SCHAEER

COLOMA — Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Schaeer, 3653 North Coloma road, Coloma, observed their 50th wedding anniversary at a family dinner April 17 at Win Schuler's restaurant, Stevensville.

Ernest Schaeer and Freda Leach were married April 17, 1927, at the bride's home near Hartford. The Rev. William Goltz of the Coloma Congregational church performed the ceremony.

The couple purchased a farm north of Coloma in 1927 and have resided there all of their married life.

They have two sons, Gordon Schaeer of Baroda and Darrin Schaeer of Eau Claire, and one grandchild.

Schaeer is retired from Industrial Rubber and works part-time at DeGroot, Inc., Coloma.

In Play At College

EAU CLAIRE — Al Flowers of Eau Claire is a member of the cast of "Oliver," to be presented by the Theatre and Music Departments of Willmar Community college, Willmar, Minn., May 2-7.

Flowers, a 1976 graduate of Eau Claire high school, will portray the character of Bow Street Runner in the musical, which is based on Charles Dickens' "Oliver Twist."

A liberal arts major, Flower is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Glen Flowers Sr., of Eau Claire.

"Grill Talk" On Hamburgers

You'll have remarkably good hamburgers when you add oats to uncooked ground beef. You see, the rolled-oats hold in moisture.

To one and one-half pounds of ground beef, add three-fourths cup quick or old fashioned oats, uncooked and one-half cup liquid such as tomato sauce, chili sauce, catsup, barbecue sauce, enchilada sauce, milk or sour cream. Shape into eight hamburger patties. Grill over ash-covered coals to desired doneness. Makes eight servings.

'Your Problems' By Ann Landers

Their Grandson Is Snobbish

Dear Ann Landers: Our grandson, Don, brought several friends home for the weekend. (He is a college student.) Don asked that we not come to his parents' home — said he'd rather come by and see us at our place.

We learned the reason from his mother. He is ashamed of our shabby appearance.

I wonder if young folks realize how difficult it is for elderly people to live on Social Security checks these days.

After we buy food, medicine and pay for our housing and heating, there is nothing left. We can't afford nice clothes.

Grandpa and I are deeply hurt. Perhaps a word from you would help today's young people understand. — Salt Lake Senior Citizens

Dear Friends: Please don't

Same Old Plot

Dear Ann Landers: I've been going with a married man for 19 months. "Wally" and I are very much in love. Someone tipped off his wife and she telephoned me. I denied everything. The next night "Wally" came to see me. He said his wife bought my story hook, line and sinker, and we have nothing to worry about.

I told him 19 months was long enough to sneak around and if he wanted to stay with his wife he'd have to leave me alone. He swore he didn't love her but couldn't face a divorce on account of his kids. (They are 15 and 18 and go to boarding school.) I said, "That settles it. Leave this minute and I never want to see you again."

The following weekend "Wally" called four times. He said he loves me and is going crazy. I love him, too, but I now know he'll never marry me. A terrific struggle is going on inside my head. I want marriage and children and I'm sick of motel rooms. What should I do? — Agony In Connecticut

Dear A.: Same old plot. Married man. No intention of leaving his family. Likes to fiddle around and hates to get out of the orchestra.

The next time "Wally" calls, tell him if he phones again you will go to his wife and ask her what to do. This is a mighty strong threat but since you are fighting to build a new life and he insists on making it rough, use the heaviest ammunition you can lay your hands on.

That's Betrayal?

Dear Ann Landers: When my wife went to Grand Rapids to visit her mother, my sister invited me to dinner. We got into a discussion about women who dye their hair. I said I thought it was remarkable that Alma (my wife) was 32 and didn't have a gray hair in her head. My sister said, "You fool, Alma has been dyeing her hair for years." I was shocked.

When Alma came home I put the question to her. She said, "Yes, it's true." I asked her why she hadn't told me. She replied, "I didn't see any point to it."

I feel as if I've been betrayed. Am I justified? — Kalamazoo

Dear Zoo: There's not a shred of evidence that Alma was trying to deceive you. These days hair-tinting is fairly routine. (P.S. Your sister sounds like a trouble maker — with gray hair.)

Dr. Lester Coleman

When I was a little girl I had some kind of infection, like measles or mumps. It seems I was given a lot of antibiotics. Afterwards, two of my teeth became discolored and there are tiny holes in my four front teeth. I was told that eventually I would have to have my teeth capped. I know this is expensive. I am 18. Is there any other way to disguise my teeth and improve their appearance? I spend half my life trying to hide my teeth by not smiling. — K.B., N.J.

Dear Miss B.:

Dentists have been trying for a long time to find some kind of safe chemical method to cover blemishes on teeth. The ideal substance, of course, would be one that is cosmetically excellent and at the same time protect the structure of the teeth.

Dr. Seymour Roth, of New York City, has been extremely interested in the profound psychological changes that occur in patients who have "pitted" teeth, discolored teeth, chipped edges of teeth and teeth that have a tendency to decay.

Dr. Roth and many other dentists are using a new type of plastic shield which seems to be effective against decay, and at the same time markedly improves the appearance of the teeth.

The technique is not a complicated one. It is safe and painless. First, the tooth surface is specially prepared, then coated with a colorless solution which seals the "pits" and covers the discolored areas. Then, a beam of ultraviolet light is concentrated on this area. Within a few moments, the liquid becomes hard and is covered into a protective shield.

The color of the liquid that is applied is carefully selected to match adjacent teeth. Or, with this process, all the teeth can be made whiter if the patient desires.

The process lasts for about three years and can be safely repeated.

This valuable addition to modern dentistry has been extended to the repair of small fractures of the teeth and to reduce large spaces between the teeth.

Dentists who are trained in the use of this equipment are reporting excellent results and are finding more and more areas for its use.

I've been told that I need a "calorie" test to find out why I have dizzy spells. I can't find any information on this in any book. — Mrs. D.T.R., Okla.

Dear Mrs. R.:

The test that you are referring to is known as a "caloric" test. This has nothing to do with calories.

The test is done by placing a small amount of ice cold water in the outer ear canal. In patients with normal hearing and normal equilibrium mechanism, the cold water affects the ear drum, and immediately produces marked symptoms of dizziness.

Along with the dizziness, there is a falling sensation, also rapid eye movements (nystagmus).

These reactions are carefully interpreted by the ear specialist or by the neurologist. It takes a great deal of training to interpret the direction of the eye movements, the falling sensation and the severity of the dizzy response.

A match-point player would look over dummy and note that with all finesses working, he would be able to win all 13 tricks. He wouldn't worry about missing the slam. A total of 29 high-card points with no singletons and no long suits in either hand doesn't lead to a slam contract, but he would want all the tricks, and probably would win the first spade in his hand and take the club finesse. He would wind up losing both the finesse and his contract.

A rubber bridge player or match-point player would still win that first spade, but he would win it in dummy to take a diamond finesse. It would lose and West would lead his queen of spades.

Our careful player would let that hold but win the third spade. Then he would run his diamonds; take and lose the club finesse, but wind up with a very satisfactory 10 tricks in spite of all finesses being wrong.

Ask the Jacobys

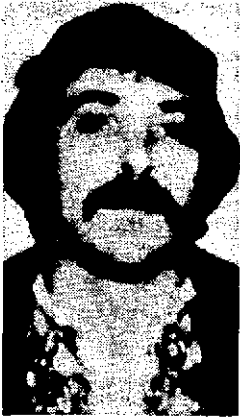

A Maryland reader wants to know what the rule of the ace and the king is or was.

Invented by Oswald Jacoby some 45 years ago, it provides that if you can take a king or its equivalent out of your hand and still have your previous bids you should make some effort to get from part score to game or from game to a slam depending on how far you have already gone. With an extra ace you just make a stronger effort.

women were expected to be picked up later today on federal charges stemming from an alleged travelers check kiting scheme.

Robert E. Kent, special agent in charge of the Detroit FBI office, said the six were all indicted April 13 on charges that they participated in a scheme in which the face amount of travelers checks were increased illegally. He said some 120 of the checks were cashed for an estimated $13,000 last December, chiefly in southwestern Michigan.

Arrested yesterday on federal warrants were James Pershing Davis, 30, of 635 Gestner, and Sanford Allan Spear, 19, of 2139 Red Arrow highway, both Benton Heights. Spear had been arrested last January in connection with the operation but that charge was subsequently dismissed.

Two of the others, Dallas Martin Taylor, 30, Benton Heights, and Ronald Dee Wycoff, 22, of 8063 Lincoln avenue, Baroda, were already confined in the Berrien county jail on local charges. The U.S. marshal at Grand Rapids filed

He Wasn't Scope Employee

Tommy L. Lanier, 26, of 1142 Hurd avenue, Benton Harbor, was not employed by Scope Security Service early Sunday when he was arrested by state police, according to Donna Sieber, Scope Security director.

Mrs. Sieber said Lanier was terminated by Scope April 10 and turned in his uniform April 12. A report filed by state police of the Benton Harbor post after an investigation had listed the employer as Scope.

Yesterday in District court, Lanier was ordered to pay fines on the following charges: $32 for possession of open intoxicants in a motor vehicle; $152 for driving under the influence of intoxicants; and $15 for not having a Michigan operator's license. State police arrested Lanier off M-139 in Sodas township.

Fain, 19, of Maple court, Buchanan. He added the two young women were to be taken into custody today.

A seventh person reported involved in the ring, Kevin Sink, 27, of Benton township, was arrested last January and has already pleaded guilty to interstate transportation of stolen property and is awaiting sentence. Sink is held as a federal prisoner in the Kent county jail in lieu of $50,000 bail.

The arrests of Davis and Spear yesterday were carried out by Dean Phelps, senior resident FBI agent at Benton Harbor, assisted by Det. Capt. Paul Farris of Benton township police and Berrien Sheriff's Depts. George Vollrath and James Leonard.

FBI Agent Phelps said still other persons may have been involved in the operation but that no other indictments have been returned by the federal grand jury at Grand Rapids.

Phelps explained the operation, as follows:

Travelers checks of the Travelers Express Co., Minneapolis, were purchased in various chain grocery stores in Michigan, usually for small sums, such as $10.15. In some instances the zero was altered to a figure "9", changing the face value to $91.15, and in some other cases a "1" was inserted in front of the zero-changed-to-9 elevating the check to $191.15.

While most of the checks were cashed in southwestern Michigan, according to Phelps, some were cashed in Jackson, Lansing and Grand Rapids.

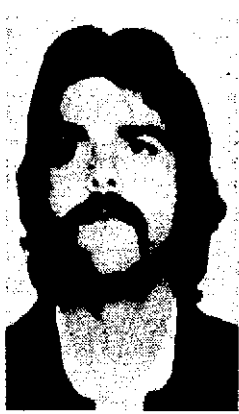

Charges of interstate transportation of stolen property, aiding and abetting in the interstate transportation of stolen property, and conspiracy to transport stolen property interstate were contained in the warrants for Davis, Spear, Taylor and the two women. The warrant for Wycoff charges only conspiracy to transport stolen property interstate.

A total of 50 counts were included in the indictments involving the six, Kent stated.

Davis and Spear were taken to Grand Rapids after their arrest yesterday and made an initial appearance before the U.S. magistrate in federal district court. Bail was set at $2,500 for each, and they were remanded to the Kent county jail when they were unable to post bonds. Arraignment date is to be set.

Phelps said all of the six have previous police records, except for Mrs. Yakel.

Bad For Fish, Man Too?

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

Certain toxic chemicals could have similar harmful effects on both fish and man, researchers at two Upper Midwest laboratories report. Scientists have been studying for some time the effects on man of eating fish contaminated by toxic chemicals, and studies are now underway to determine the effect of manmade chemicals on fish and aquatic life. Researchers at the Hormel Institute in Austin, Minn., and the Fish Pesticide Research Unit in La Crosse, Wis., are looking into what effect polychlorinated biphenyls (PCBs) may have on the reproduction, growth and survival of fish. Tests thus far confirm that PCBs are indeed harmful to fish, said Wilbur Mauck, a fisheries biologist at the La Crosse lab, which is part of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service research system.

Toxin May Have Leaked

MUSKEGON, Mich. (AP) — Up to 500,000 gallons of a toxic chemical liquid missing from a warehouse may have leaked into the ground and state officials say it could taint well water. The city water supply, however, apparently would not be affected because Muskegon area soil is highly porous and conducts groundwater rapidly, the officials said Monday. State officials say the chemical, sodium formate, would contaminate the well water or get into local streams if it did leak into the area's highly porous soil. A huge storage vat owned by Systems Technology Corp., an industrial waste disposal firm, is 500,000 gallons short on sodium formate, the firm told the state last week. It can irritate tissue and may cause amnesia in humans. The State Department of Natural Resources (DNR) has told Systems Technology to empty the tank and begin a study of groundwater in the area to determine if there has been any seepage.

Check Mystery Is Solved

DETROIT (AP) — The Michigan Employment Security Commission has cleared up the mystery of 2,700 blank checks that could have cost the state a lot of money. S. Martin Taylor, MESC director, on Monday said the checks, found blowing around on the streets of the city's west side, were stolen from a private trucking depot before they could be delivered to his office. The checks, part of a shipment containing 495,000 blank MESC checks, were carried off by thieves from a trailer parked at the U.S. Truck Co., Inc., Taylor said. They were due to be delivered to the MESC Monday morning. Taylor said the thieves apparently carried the checks a block and then abandoned them. The honesty of employees of Star Tool & Die saved the state the embarrassment — and the money — that could have resulted from filling in the checks and cashing them for up to $300 each. Star employees found the checks Saturday morning and took them to police.

Man's Bond Is $80,000

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (AP) — An escapee from federal custody charged with robbing a St. Joseph County bank has been ordered held under $80,000 bond after he stood mute to the bank robbery charge. U.S. Magistrate Stephen Karr entered a plea of innocent for Bobby Eugene Harden, 32, formerly of Battle Creek, after Harden's arraignment Monday. Harden is charged with robbing the Security National Bank branch in Leeland on Jan. 21. A federal grand jury also has indicted Harden on charges of escape. Authorities said Harden escaped Nov. 15 from the Kalamazoo Correctional Center after being committed in 1972 by a federal judge in Arkansas. Authorities said records in Grand Rapids did not show why Harden was committed originally.

Ann Arbor Recount Due

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — The Washtenaw County Board of Canvassers has voted to hold a recount in the Ann Arbor mayoral race, which the incumbent won by one vote. Republican challenger Louis Belcher asked for a record of the April 4 election after official totals showed incumbent Albert Wheeler, a Democrat, won by one vote. More than 21,000 ballots were cast. The board said Monday the recount would be completed in about one week.

Customers Protest Utility Rate Hikes

DETROIT (AP) — Angry customers pleaded for a halt to soaring gas, electric and telephone bills in a public confrontation with the presidents of Michigan's four largest utility companies.

The state Public Service Commission hearing Monday on utility rates and services was believed to be the first time the top officials of all four companies appeared at the same time at a PSC meeting.

The presidents sat quietly through a barrage of accusations from customers, many of them old, disabled or on welfare.

The utility presidents are David Eastlick of Michigan Bell, Jack Hammond of Detroit Edison, John Selby of Consumers Power and Charles Montgomery of Michigan Consolidated Gas.

"There have been charges made that members of the PSC are in the pay of the utilities," said Al Fishman of People for Economic Justice. "There is no evidence of this, but I would say if they are not, then they are being cheated by the utility companies."

Some of the witnesses complained of being cut off from heat, electricity or gas because they were unable to pay their bills.

"The bills go higher and higher, and the service gets worse and worse," said Ella Bragg, 59, Detroit. "We turn our thermostats down, we insulate our homes, and it doesn't do a bit of good."

Mrs. Bragg said she pays an average $40 gas bill out of her $200 fixed income every month and is barely able to buy food and other necessities with what's left.

"You're well fed, you have a good salary, you don't understand the problems we face," she said, gesturing angrily at the nearby utility officials. "I resent you, because you're a monopoly. I can't buy my utilities from anyone but you."

Montgomery, of the gas company, said he sat on the firing line because he has a social responsibility to keep in touch with the people.

"I am greatly bothered," he said, "by the inability of some people to pay their bills, with me not having any way to deal with it."

"They're angry, they're frustrated, and logic goes out the window. People don't realize that this past winter was 100 per cent colder, and bills were higher because of that."

'Blues' Criticize Cost Limit Plans

By SUSAN AGER
Associated Press Writer
LANSING, Mich. (AP) — State regulators are proposing illegal cost containment policies for health care, according to hospitals and Michigan Blue Cross-Blue Shield.

The Blues and the Michigan Hospital Association agreed at a public hearing Monday that the health care cost spiral should be stopped. They said their own efforts to keep costs down are working, to the tune of $350 million in savings last year.

But they criticized a proposal by state Insurance Commissioner Thomas Jones that contracts include specific cost containment rules and financial penalties for failing to limit costs.

State law does not allow Jones to "dictate the terms of our contract," said Blues President John McCabe.

And spokesmen for the Michigan Hospital Association said the rules amount to "attempts to regulate hospitals," a move it says Jones cannot legally take.

Jones says he is confident of his legal authority to put the rules into the contracts. Such rules are necessary, he said, because the Blues' own efforts to keep costs down are inadequate as health care costs soar twice as fast as the general cost of living.

Hospitals and the Blues would be required under the rules to take steps to reduce the number of hospital beds, shorten patient stays, limit surgery and X-rays and end incorrect or false billings.

McCabe told Jones his proposals are in many cases redundant. Through their own cost containment efforts last year, about $350 million was saved that would have otherwise been paid out in benefits, he said.

Blue Cross-Blue Shield, the state's largest health insurer, provides coverage for about 5.3 million Michigan residents. It is seeking an average 12.4 per cent increase in rates that would amount to $250 million to $275 million more in revenue over the next two years.

Last July 1, a record $284 million rate increase took effect that boosted subscriber premiums by about 28.6 per cent. Subscribers were told by Jones that the Blues "pay out (to hospitals) too much for what they're getting" in health care.

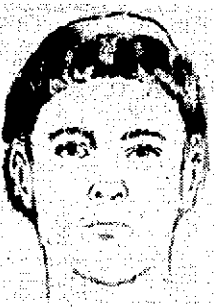

Deputy Insurance Commissioner Philip Arben said he has been unable to verify the Blues' claim that they saved $350 million. But, he said, "I see no reason why the cost of running a hospital should increase twice as much as the cost of anything else."

"If, in fact, they find (the proposed rules) so redundant and say they're doing all these things right now, I can't understand why they object to them being in the contract," said Arben.

The Blues say the new rules might force them to renegotiate their contracts with some hospitals while others might object to the state's intervention and drop out of the Blues plan. Now, most of Michigan's 260 or so hospitals deal with the Blues.

Blues group Vice President Daniel Kehne, who read McCabe's statement, said the insurer and hospitals "are in a better position" to work on keeping costs down "than could be done by pure government fiat."

Jones' proposed rules need the approval of the attorney general and a legislative committee before they take effect.

VA Nursing Assistant Says She Was Granted Immunity

DETROIT (AP) — A former nursing assistant has confirmed she was granted immunity from prosecution in the murder trial of two Filipina nurses accused of killing patients at the Veterans Administration hospital in Ann Arbor.

The witness, Mrs. Bonnie Weston, has been named by the defense as a possible suspect in the case.

The two defendants — Filipina Nareiso, 30, of Ypsilanti, and Leonora Perez, 32, of Ann Arbor — have been charged with two counts of murder, seven counts of poisoning and one count of conspiracy. They deny all charges.

On the witness stand Monday, Mrs. Weston was asked to explain why she had received immunity, but her explanation was cut off by defense lawyers who said her testimony was not relevant at this time.

During opening arguments, defense attorneys told the jury that three persons, including Mrs. Weston, are considered alternate suspects in the crimes.

The defense said it would show during the trial why Mrs. Weston was granted immunity, and "what she did that she thought was criminal."

The prosecution, which so far has refused to attribute a motive, contends the two nurses injected Pavulon, a powerful muscle relaxant drug, into hospital patients.

Most of the breathing failures occurred in the intensive care ward on the afternoon shift, when Mrs. Weston and the two accused nurses worked together.

Mrs. Weston was accompanied to court by her attorney, Donald Kenney of Ann Arbor. He told reporters he negotiated the grant of immunity for his client about a year ago, before Miss Nareiso and Mrs. Perez were charged.

Veteran AP Political Writer Awarded Pulitzer

WALTER MEARS

NEW YORK (AP) — Walter Mears of The Associated Press, one of "the boys on the bus" in every presidential campaign since 1948, has won the 1977 Pulitzer Prize for national reporting.

Mears' rapid-fire writing under pressure of newspaper deadlines through 32 presidential primaries and the national campaign was praised by the Pulitzer jury, which said more people throughout the world probably read his words than those of any other political reporter.

Mears was one of several political reporters highlighted in Timothy Crouse's book, "The Boys On The Bus." The book chronicled the press coverage of the 1972 presidential campaign between President Richard M. Nixon and Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D.

Alex Haley was in Gambia and Michael Cristofer was sitting under a tree in Ohio when they were named Pulitzer winners Monday. Haley in a special category for his best-seller "Roots," and Cristofer in drama for his play, "Shadow Box," which just opened on Broadway.

Haley was visiting his ancestral home of Juffure this week, a village that has become a mecca for black Americans since publication of his partly fictionalized account of the descendants of the slave Kunta Kinte. A television movie of his book was rated the most watched show in history.

Cristofer's play, which scans the lives of eight persons who deal with the impending death of three of them, opened here March 31, the last day to qualify for this year's Pulitzers.

The Lufkin, Tex., News won the Public Service Award for its series on the death of recruit at a Marine Corps training camp. The series triggered a congressional probe and reform in training practices.

"I can't believe it," said Joe Murray, editor of the 13,000-circulation daily. "You sit down here on a little paper like Lufkin ... and you kind of fantasize about something like that."

The annual Pulitzer Prizes in the Arts and Journalism are awarded by Columbia University from an endowment of the late Joseph Pulitzer, publisher of the defunct New York World. A $1,000 cash prize accompanies each award except the Public Service Award, which is a gold medal.

For the first time in the 61-year history of the awards, no prize was given for international reporting, and no award was given for fiction for the 10th time.

A Pulitzer official said it was "a thin year, not a banner year" for fiction and international reporting.

Neal Ulevich of the Associated Press shared the prize for spot news photography with Stanley Forman of the Boston Herald-American.

Ulevich won for his photos of a student uprising in Bangkok, including one showing a rightist about to slam a chair into the lifeless body of a hanged student following demonstrations. Forman's prize-winner, taken during the anti-busing furor in Boston, showed a white man attacking a black lawyer with a flag staff bearing the American flag.

Other prize winners in journalism included:

—Margo Huston of the Milwaukee Journal, general local reporting, for investigation of local nursing home conditions.

—Acel Moore and Wendell Rawls Jr. of the Philadelphia Inquirer, special local reporting, for exposing conditions at Pennsylvania's Fairview State Hospital for the Criminally Insane.

—Warren Lerude, Foster Church and Norman Cardozo of the Reno, Nev., Evening Gazette and Nevada State Journal, editorial writing, in a campaign against a local brothel keeper.

—Paul Szep of the Boston Globe, editorial cartooning.

—Robin Hood of the Chattanooga News-Free Press, feature photography, for a photo of a legless Vietnam veteran in a wheelchair holding a child in his lap at a parade.

—George F. Will of the Washington Post Writers Group, commentary, for his nationally syndicated column.

—William McPherson of the Washington Post, criticism, for his book reviews.

Other winners in the arts categories:

David M. Potter, a professor of American history at Stanford who died in 1971, won the history award for "Impending Years," which deals with events from 1848 to 1861 leading to the Civil War.

William Warner, chief fund raiser for the Smithsonian Institution, won the general non-fiction award for "Beautiful Swimmers: Watermen, Crabs and Chesapeake Bay."

The poetry prize went to James Merrill for his book, "Divine Comedies."

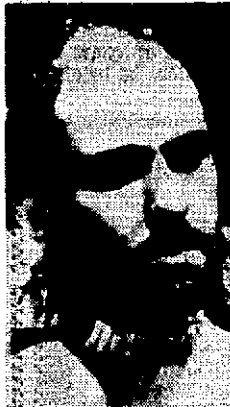

"Visions of Terror and Wonder," a work for mezzo soprano and orchestra, won the music prize for Richard Weirnick of the University of Pennsylvania.

John E. Mack, Harvard professor of psychiatry, won the biography prize for "A Price for Our Disorder: The Life of T.E. Lawrence," a historical biography, with psychological insights, on the Englishman known as Lawrence of Arabia.

NEWSMAN DIES
DETROIT (AP) — Services are scheduled Thursday for Vally Scott, 48, weekend news anchor and automotive news editor for WJBK-TV who died Monday of a cerebral hemorrhage.

BATTLE CREEK, Mich. (AP) — The Sequoia, a presidential yacht used frequently by President Nixon during the Watergate scandal, will be available to the highest bidder May 23 because President Carter decided it was too costly to keep.

The U.S. Defense Property Disposal Service is accepting sealed bids on the yacht, which has been used by presidents since 1930. A spokesman said Monday the agency had not set a minimum price for the Sequoia, but he said he was certain there would be one.

Rex Granum, a deputy press secretary who announced Carter's decision to sell the Sequoia, estimated the yacht is worth between $200,000 and $400,000.

The vessel, launched in 1925, is 104 feet long, with a beam of more than 19 feet and draws 3 1/4 feet of water.

The President decided to sell the Sequoia April 1 after complaining it costs taxpayers $800,000 per year with all but $100,000 of that spent on salaries for its crew of 38. The rest of the money goes for maintenance.

Potential purchasers may inspect the Sequoia at the Washington Navy Yard on April 27 but only through an appointment with Yard officials.

Any buyer must remove the yacht from the Navy Yard by June 22, said Bill Collins, a public relations officer for the Defense Property Disposal Service.

Collins said the Battle Creek-based agency, which sells huge quantities of material each year declared surplus by the government, would announce details of the Sequoia's sale later.

Bilandic Is Heavy Favorite In Today's Chicago Primary

By MIKE ROBINSON
Associated Press Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — Michael Bilandic, who became acting mayor after Richard Daley's death and now wants to keep the act running, was heavily favored over five rival Democrats as Chicagoans turned out today for a special primary election.

Officials predicted that half the city's 561,238 registered voters would pick finalists for the remaining portion of Daley's sixth term, which expires in 1979. The winner on the Democratic side was expected to have no trouble in the June election. A four-way primary battle among Republicans was viewed as largely academic — and, indeed, the entire campaign has been criticized by many as dull, with the Chicago Tribune comparing it in a Sunday editorial to low-calorie tapioca pudding.

A poll commissioned by the Chicago Sun-Times and taken early this month showed Bilandic, 54, holding a 2-1 lead over Alderman Raman Pucinski, with state Sen. Harold Washington third. Others in the race were former State's Attorney Edward Hanrahan, attorney Ellis Reid and wealthy political gadfly Anthony Martin-Trigona. Pucinski, a 57-year-old former congressman fighting the organization he once supported, spent the waning hours of the race in heavily Polish-American wards on the Northwest Side. Washington, 55, appealed for votes on the predominantly black South Side.

Bilandic, a bachelor lawyer who started doing political chores for Daley in the 11th Ward in 1948, remained at City Hall most of Monday to greet visitors.

Carter's Auto Emission Package Will Boost Prices

By TOM RAUM
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Owning and operating an automobile will cost you far more in the coming years if Congress enacts President Carter's proposals to conserve energy and protect the environment.

The Carter administration acknowledges that its just-unveiled plan to tighten auto emission standards could increase car sticker prices by as much as $330 by 1985.

That's in addition to the plan for a standby gasoline tax of up to 50 cents a gallon and the proposal to add hundreds of dollars to the price of fuel-inefficient "gas guzzlers" that Carter is expected to announce in his energy message to Congress on Wednesday. The administration on Monday proposed delays of one to three years in enforcing tougher auto emission standards.

Although the plan was applauded by legislators who have been working on a similar measure, it was criticized by the nation's largest automaker.

Thomas Murphy, chairman of General Motors, said in Detroit that the proposal would mean more gasoline consumption and would "increase the price of new cars with no added value to the buyer and almost unmeasurable added benefit to the environment."

The Carter plan would delay tougher hydrocarbon standards for one year until 1979 and new carbon monoxide standards for three years until 1981.

Under existing law, 1977 model cars cannot emit more than 1.5 grams per mile of hydrocarbons, 15 grams per mile of carbon monoxide and two grams per mile of nitrogen oxides.

The 1970 Clean Air act required that 1978 model cars meet the tough new standards. But industry and government officials agree that the industry can't meet that deadline, and some form of extension seems assured.

Carter's plan recommends that:

—The statutory standard for hydrocarbons of .41 grams per mile be met beginning with the 1979 model year.

—The standard for carbon monoxide should be set at 9.0 grams per mile in 1979 and 3.3 grams per mile beginning with the 1981 model year.

—The standard for nitrogen oxide, the hardest pollutant to remove from exhaust without hampering fuel-efficiency, should be continued at 2.0 grams per mile through 1980, then set at 1.0 grams per mile with 1981 models and in the future unless the government decides that a standard of 0.4 grams per mile is needed starting with 1983 model cars.

Carter's proposal is similar to versions now before committees in both House and Senate, although the Senate measure would impose a somewhat tighter timetable on the auto industry.

Douglas M. Costle, administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency, said the administration would also like standby authority to impose a tax of $65 to $120 on 1983 model cars that fail to meet the 0.4 gram-per-mile nitrogen oxide standard, if the EPA decides it should be imposed.

In testimony to a House Commerce subcommittee, Costle said that the proposed standards "could increase the sticker price of cars by a maximum of $250 in 1985 with an additional increase of $80 if the 0.4 gram per mile nitrogen oxide (standard) is imposed."

But, he said, this is part of the price Americans must pay for a cleaner environment.

Sen. Edmund Muskie, D-Maine, chairman of the Senate environmental pollution subcommittee working on a revision of clean air laws, welcomed the administration plan.

"I am encouraged that the President is so clearly committed to the public health — and will back up his commitment with strong environmental standards," Muskie said.

But Sen. Gary Hart, D-Colo., a member of Muskie's panel, said the administration plan is not strict enough.

Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich., a member of a counterpart committee in the House, said the measure is too stringent.

Like the auto industry and the United Auto Workers, Dingell said he would like to see a somewhat longer extension of the existing standards along with laxer eventual standards for nitrogen oxides.

Dingell charged that Carter's proposal will waste fuel and conflicts with his energy goal of making cars more fuel efficient.

ASKS POLLUTION DELAY: Douglas M. Costle, administrator of Environmental Protection Agency, waits as White House aide tapes up chart on auto emission standards Monday before he briefs newsmen. (AP Wirephoto)

It's News TODAY

Tax Cut Appears Unlikely

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate tax writers are trying to put together a tax bill that does not rely on the $50-per-person rebates President Carter once placed at the heart of his economic stimulus program. The Senate Finance Committee, called into session today, has at least two problems as it tries to salvage Carter's stimulus package: how to handle a Republican drive for permanent tax cuts to substitute for the one-time payments to most Americans, and how much stimulation to business should remain in the reduced bill. Carter has said he will veto any bill containing further permanent tax reductions. Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., the committee's chairman, predicted no such provisions will become law, however hard Republicans try.

They Still Prefer Men

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Each of 401 working women surveyed here said she suffered sexual harassment on the job, but most said they still would rather have a man for a boss than a woman. Sixteen per cent of the women said the advances by male co-workers or the boss bothered them so much they quit. The women were interviewed by Prof. Sandra Carey and students in her social deviancy class last semester at the University of Texas at San Antonio. "When the Elizabeth Ray story broke, everyone seemed surprised that this sort of thing was going on, but the sociology literature reports it's quite common," Dr. Carey said Monday after the results were tabulated. Miss Ray's claim last year that Rep. Wayne Hays, D-Ohio, hired her as a secretary merely to have sex with him led to Hays' resignation, although he denied improper conduct.

More N-Plant Inspection?

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nuclear Regulatory Commission is considering a plan to station fulltime inspectors at every reactor in the country. Now, the inspectors visit each site only once every two weeks. The proposal is in line with a Carter administration recommendation to tighten nuclear safety standards. President Carter is considering an expansion of conventional nuclear power, but with tougher federal inspections at atomic power plants. The proposal before the NRC comes from the commission's staff. Its recommendation was the middle ground of five proposals that varied in cost and complexity. Critics of the present standard say the infrequent schedule means inspectors spend most of their time going over company records with very little time to test for themselves whether all federal requirements are being met.

Poor Schools Win Ruling

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — The Connecticut Supreme Court has ruled that the state is unconstitutionally discriminating against poor school districts by making no distinction in the rate at which it gives state aid to various communities. The suit, filed on behalf of Barnaby Horton, a public school student in Canton, argued the state made no distinction between the ability of rich towns and poor ones to raise money for schools. That, it argued, had the effect of putting affluent communities in a position to spend more on education than small schools in poor towns. While the justices agreed with the constitutional challenge, they did not specify how the system should be changed. The Supreme Court said that's up to the General Assembly.

High Court Gets Bailey Appeal Now

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — State Rep.-elect William H. Bailey has turned to the Rhode Island Supreme Court in his struggle to avoid extradition to Michigan where he faces up to four years in prison.

The court on Monday agreed to hear Bailey's challenge to the legality of the order and scheduled a hearing for Friday. The court also extended the bail on the South Providence Democrat.

The extradition order was upheld earlier in the day by Superior Court Judge William A. MacKenzie, but the high court's decision to consider the case apparently makes that ruling moot.

Bailey's lawyer, John A. O'Neill Jr., contended in Superior Court his client was not properly represented by his Michigan lawyer, who did not file an appeal to the 1973 larceny conviction.

He argued that bail was revoked in Michigan because that appeal was not filed.

O'Neill said Bailey's Michigan lawyer will ask a U.S. District Court today in Michigan to reinstate the bail. He said if the bail is granted it would nullify the extradition order.

Bailey was sentenced to two-to-four-years in prison for the theft of 31 record albums from a W.T. Grant's store in Algonac, Mich.

Vintage Mini-Cars On Sale

DETROIT (AP) — If you're worried your car may fall in the much maligned gas-guzzler class, how about buying a half-sized reproduction of a 1901 Oldsmobile, Cadillac, Ford or Gadsabout?

They are being sold in Detroit's newest auto dealership, Motor City Vintage Reproductions, which opened two weeks ago.

The cars, about one-half the size of the horseless carriages they're modeled after, are being sold in four states in the Southwest and in Florida. They are also on sale in Detroit and Lexington, Mich. The cars are made by Vintage Reproductions, Inc., of Fort Lauderdale.

They carry a price tag of about $3,000, have a 30 mile an hour cruising range, and get 30 miles to each gallon of gasoline in their two-gallon tanks.

The engine may sound, smell and rattle like your lawnmower's. And that's just what's under the hood — an 8-horsepower Briggs & Stratton engine.

"If you put a blade under the wheels, you could cut the grass with them," said Detroit dealer owner David Bruce.

The cars come equipped with vintage fenders, electric windshield wipers, electric starters, 12-volt batteries, four-wheel brake systems and other items. Colors range in varying shades of red, blue and green.

The cars are doorless and windowless except for a vintage windshield. But buyers can get regular state licenses and drive them on the Michigan streets.

Bruce, a retired auto worker, has five models on display in the showroom with 21 others due to be shipped in from the Florida production center next week. So far, he says, he's sold one car — a bright red 1901 Gadsabout pie truck.

He said he knew well that the price tag was fairly high and would eliminate many potential buyers.

For them, he offered some hope, however. For $12 an hour, they can rent the cars and drive them around a city park to get a taste of the automobile glory that was.

Surplus Forecast In Proposed South Haven Budget

BY TOM BENNER

South Haven Correspondent

SOUTH HAVEN — A proposed budget for fiscal year 1977 was presented to city council last night by City Manager Paul Sharon. It was the council's first look at Sharon's first budget as manager of South Haven. Sharon has projected a $34,000 surplus after expenditures. The budget forecasts revenue of $1,410,505 as compared to costs of $1,376,505.

This year's budget anticipated a deficit with income of $1,252,215 against expenses of $1,262,315. Belt tightening measures are expected to bring the current year's budget within $1,000 of being balanced, according to Sharon. The new budget can be accomplished without an increase in property taxes, Sharon reports.

One uncertainty, however, is the status of labor negotiations between the city and employees who are members of the Independent Municipal Employees union. The contract with the police department also expires June 30.

Anticipated income with last year's in parentheses are: real property taxes, $464,500 ($418,507); personal property taxes, $84,907 ($140,383); single business tax, $103,204 (none); payments in lieu of taxes for the city-owned electric utility, $162,882 ($162,882); federal payments in lieu of taxes, $8,000 ($4,500); penalties on delinquent taxes, $4,500 ($2,500); licenses and permits, $4,800 ($4,500); liquor license revenue, $3,500 ($3,500); state revenue, $192,677 ($183,000); county payment for dog warden, $2,400 ($2,400); fire protection contracts, $28,000 ($27,558); cemetery, $17,000 ($15,800); parking fees, $15,000 ($8,500); penalties on parking fines, $5,000 ($6,000); ordinance fines, $3,500 ($3,500); investment income, $3,600 ($18,000); equipment rentals, $45,000 ($40,000); property rentals, $1,260 ($3,300); airport revenue, $1,307 ($1,300).

The board of public utilities will be asked to again contribute $143,000 toward the general operation of the city and street construction. Sharon anticipates an increase from $65,000 to $137,000 in federal revenue sharing funds. The first income from the cable television franchise license is expected to generate $1,140.

Proposed expenditures with federal revenue sharing funds include $25,000 toward a new fire truck; $25,000 for acquisition of property at the airport and $27,000 for construction of an area for recreational vehicles near the Black River park.

Proposed expenses by department with last year's in parentheses are: city council, $10,950 ($9,300); city manager, $30,970 ($33,800); election, $4,950 ($6,850); accounting, $27,596 ($36,892); assessor and administrative assistant, $27,970 ($24,006); clerk, $21,870 ($20,292); treasurer, $16,550 ($18,974); city hall and grounds, $10,400 ($8,900); cemetery, $50,940 ($50,104); promotional, $6,300 ($6,100); police, $351,100 ($300,904); fire, $210,900 ($180,300); building inspector, $18,335 ($23,105); highway and streets, $301,540 ($305,647); engineer, $14,057 ($15,673); health, $56,350 ($44,800); parks, $58,900 ($56,990); recreation, $42,200 ($41,350); planning commission, $2,750 ($1,250); airport, $31,300 ($8,100); contingencies, $30,000 ($28,300); insurance and bonds, $37,516 ($24,000).

Zoning Appeals Board Grants One Variance

SOUTH HAVEN — One variance was approved, another was denied and a third tabled during public hearings held by the South Haven city zoning board of appeals last night. Getman Corporation, 815 Wells street, was given permission to construct a 60 by 80 foot addition closer to the lot line than allowed in a light industrial zoned district. The addition will come within 15 feet of the line instead of the required 40 feet.

A request from James Young to construct a dwelling closer to the lot line than allowed at a corner lot at Cook and Jones streets was denied. Young had sought permission to come within 30 feet of the line instead of the required 25 feet. A request from the South Haven Coil company for light industrial usage of a building on Williams street near the central business district was tabled pending a recommendation from the planning commission. The board elected Donald Edgar as its chairman, Robert Winkel as vice-chairman and Dale Lewis as secretary.

Three Rezoning Bids Approved By South Haven

SOUTH HAVEN — Three requests to have property rezoned received South Haven city council approval last night following public hearings. Council approved rezoning from one family residential to planned development a 26 acre tract on the city's north side for a proposed condominium project. It is the second time in recent months that council has given the green light to a condominium project on the north side.

Last night the council accepted a plan from American Dwellings, Inc. of Kalamazoo for a project that could result in the construction of up to 130 condominiums. The property is located near North Shore drive and Brockway avenue. The developer proposes to initially construct 24 two and three bedroom units that will have a price range of $22,000 to $40,000. Also included will be a community building, indoor swimming pool and tennis courts.

The developer, which recently completed the Maple Glen apartment project on the city's northeast side, was given one year to begin his new venture or have the zoning revert back to one family residential. Council approved rezoning property next to the Getman Corporation, 815 East Wells street, from one family residential to light industrial to allow the firm to undertake an expansion project.

In a related matter, council agreed to explore the possibility of establishing an industrial development district for the firm which manufactures mining equipment. Dana S. Getman, president of the firm, has proposed a four phase program costing $800,000 over the next three years.

Initially, the company plans to construct a 5,000 square foot addition and to rehabilitate the existing plant. Future phases include more warehouse and office space and a 12,000 square foot addition for manufacturing purposes.

A request from South Haven Lodge No. 697 Loyal Order of Moose to rezone property at 1025 East Wells street from one family residential to planned resort waterfront was approved. The organization said it plans to build a new 60 by 120 foot clubhouse on the tract.

In a related matter, council said it would not object if the lodge's club license was transferred from its present location at 416 Quaker street to the new building.

In other areas, the council denied a request from the Unification Church of America to conduct fund raising activities in the city. The church is currently embroiled in court battles involving "mind kidnapping" and deprogramming of members.

Last Monday similar requests were received in Niles and Coloma in Berrien county. The Niles council turned the request down while Coloma came out against it but indicated it could not stop the activities. Council agreed to meet in workshop session to discuss a request from Albert Rues, owner of the local Dairy Queen, that he be allowed to locate a concession stand near the city's north beach.

St. Joe Schools Ask City To Collect Taxes In July

The St. Joseph board of education voted last night to ask the City of St. Joseph to collect one-half of the school district property taxes, along with the city property tax each July. The purpose is to ease a cash flow problem.

The request was in the form of a resolution adopted by unanimous voice vote. It must be approved by the city commission, which tabled the matter at its regular meeting last night.

City Manager Gerald Hepler said school officials had asked for the tabling while the school board acted on the matter last night.

The board of education, after voting on the resolution, agreed that if the city approves the request, the city should decide whether the added collection would begin this July or July, 1978.

The board also agreed that in the future, townships in the school district should be approached with similar requests. However, townships presently do not have summer taxes.

If the city approves the request, it would mean St. Joseph property owners would pay the remaining half of their school taxes in December along with county taxes.

St. Joseph city presently collects its own taxes in July, while city residents pay school district and county taxes in December.

The city does not charge a collection fee for the July collection, but does add a 1 per cent collection fee in December. This is because the city is collecting taxes for other government units.

Business Manager Dennis Percy told the school board, the school district probably would pay the summer collection charges. Percy said these include one-time expenses of $6,700 for computer programming and $100 for the city to change its tax forms sent to residents; and $1,300 annually for processing the tax collections.

Percy said the new collection system would save school district taxpayers about $30,000 annually, with most saved through less interest payments on tax anticipation loans. Percy said the school district this year has borrowed $2.6 million that is to be repaid in eight months. He said summer school tax collections would substantially reduce, but would not eliminate the need to borrow against tax revenue income.

The school district last year levied 35.616 mills, including 31.466 mills for operating, 1 mill for building and site and 3.150 for debt retirement. The city levied 18.70 mills. If the same millage rates continue, city residents in July would pay $4,508 mills, or half the school tax, plus the city tax.

City residents in December would pay half the school tax, plus the county tax.

Percy said under state law, cities may collect either 50 per cent of school taxes in the summer, or 100 per cent.

The school board in other matters, voted to authorize its president and secretary to sign the deed conveying the former Milton junior high school property to Whirlpool Corp. It also voted to make a final payment of $4,990 to John G. Yerington Concrete Co., for demolishing the school.

Whirlpool bought the cleared 2.2-acre site for $50,000 and was to turn it over to the city for use as a park for $1 per year. Yerington was paid $49,900 to demolish the school.

Board Treasurer John Piemeleer read three letters in behalf of the board, praising Whirlpool Corp., John G. Yerington Concrete Co., and the St. Joseph city commission.

The letters expressed appreciation for cooperation in relieving the school district of a financial burden reported caused by the Milton building and in putting the site to a use termed beneficial to the city as a whole.

In policy matters, the board rejected 4 to 3 a resolution that would have prohibited renting of school rooms to groups during days when classes are in session. Opposing the resolution were John Piemeleer, James Mason, Ray Dumke and Joseph Naines. Support was by Dr. John Porritt, Freda Sparks and Beverly Linn.

The board then agreed unanimously to permit the principal to use his discretion in renting rooms. The issue arose from a request by Lake

Makes offer for land

Michigan Catholic high school to rent the St. Joseph high school band room.

The board also voted unanimously to review rental rates. They currently are $7.50 a day for the first four days and $1.88 per day, after the fourth day.

The board also:

- Changed a policy to prohibit in the future any students from serving as drivers for any extra curricular activities sponsored by the district. The policy previously said only that use of students as drivers shall be discouraged.
- Approved a low bid of $2,650 from Benton Harbor Awning and Tent Co. to furnish sun controls for senior high school.
- Approved a low bid of $4,427 from Ned Gates Chevrolet for a 1977 van truck for the maintenance department.
- Granted leaves of absence for the 1977-78 school year to teachers Patricia Schinkel, Debra Pinkston, and Darlene Murray.
- Accepted the resignation of Dorothy Miller, an art teacher.

Church's Offer To Buy Vacant Lot Is Rejected

An offer by a church to purchase a vacant parcel of land from the City of Benton Harbor for $150 was turned down by the city commission last night because three city commissioners abstained from voting on the resolution.

The city charter requires that all city land sales must be approved by a two-thirds majority of the total nine commissioners and only five commissioners voted yes, causing the defeat of the request by the Community Church of God in Christ, 870 East Washington avenue.

Mayor Joel Patterson and Commissioners Tommie Parks and Mildred Wells abstained from voting on the resolution, while Commissioners Edmund Eaman, Charles Yarbrough, Arnold Bolin, Michael Govatos and Michael Weiss voted "Yes" on the resolution. Commissioner Alfred Williams was absent.

vacant land and the city declined the offer and said it would accept no less than $300. The church then made a second offer of $150 which the commission voted on last night.

"I received a lot of phone calls from people both supporting and objecting (to the city's approval of the church's $150 offer)," Parks said after the meeting. "We have to serve all parties in the city and I wanted to be honest and fair so I abstained from voting."

City Manager Melvin Farmer Jr. had informed commissioners in a memorandum that the city acquired the property through the state tax sale after $574 in delinquent property taxes had not been paid on the property. He said in the memorandum that the city has been receiving between $350 and $800 for the sale of lots of similar size.

Wells said he felt the church's offer was fair because the land has been vacant for the last six years and the church would have had to spend money cleaning up the property to build on it.

"We felt that 50 per cent of something was better than 100 per cent of nothing," Wells said after the meeting. "Nobody's building in Benton Harbor and the land will probably just sit there."

Wells said the church does not plan to make another offer on the land. "I guess you win some and you lose some. I'm not personally angry, but where there's no vision, the people perish."

In other business last night, the commission approved an ordinance amendment which tightens the city's residency requirements for city employees.

The current residency ordinance requires that all city employees hired after June 1, 1973, must be city residents. The amendments adopted by the commission last night also require that all city employees currently living in the city must remain living in the city and that any city employee appointed to be a city department head must be a city resident.

The commission approved a $29,750 loan through the United Community Development Corporation (UCDC) to Twin Cities Electric Co. to rehabilitate its building at 155 Sixth street. The loan will be made with money from the city's federal Community Development grant.

The city commission must approve the loans made by the UCDC, a group of Benton Harbor businessmen formed in 1975 to foster business and industrial growth in Benton Harbor. The commission also added some stipulations to the loan including that the city be made a third party to the loan and that all properties owned by Twin Cities Electric be used as security on the loan in behalf of the city.

Also approved was a $24,500 contract with the Benton Harbor certified accounting firm of Herkner, Smith, Miskill and Merrifield to conduct an audit of the city's finances for the 1977-1978 fiscal year.

LMC Trustees Deny Sabbatical Leaves To Three

By SCOTT WILLIAMSON
Staff Writer

By a 4 to 2 vote last night the Lake Michigan college board of trustees denied sabbatical leaves for the next school year to three instructors who were fired during the 1973 strike but later rehired by the college.

The college's sabbatical leave committee had recommended the three be granted the sabbaticals, but whether they were entitled to them under school policy became a focal point of a lengthy discussion. Board policy says an instructor must have spent "the preceding seven years as a teacher" to qualify for a paid sabbatical.

Dr. Walter Browe, executive vice president of LMC, told board members that two of the teachers requesting leaves have been employed longer than seven years, but not continuously. They were among 54 teachers fired in the spring of 1973 during the strike, and were rehired in the fall of 1973. But Browe said that technically each has only been employed since 1973 — the new date of hiring.

Trustee Emily Foster made the motion to deny the leaves, saying she felt it was unfair to other teachers in the same category who did not have a chance to apply for sabbatical leaves, since the board policy says they are not eligible. Browe noted there are nine teachers at LMC who were fired but later rehired after the strike.

Voting to deny sabbaticals were Mrs. Foster, Earl Place, Victor Wier, and Dr. Bernard Radde, chairman. Voting to grant the leaves were Vance R. Shaw and Howard Jablon, with Charles Hutzenga absent.

The instructors requesting sabbaticals, Browe said, were Prof. Larry Fairbanks, physical science, 14 total years at LMC; Prof. Cletus Brummel, biology, nine years; and Associate Prof. Nancy Taylor, mathematics, six years.

They were the first of those rehired to request sabbaticals. Browe after the meeting said the college has granted nine sabbaticals since 1971. He also noted no more than three can be granted in one year.

"I have some real bad feelings about denying (sabbaticals) to some super-qualified people," Shaw told other board members.

Radde said he felt the granting of the leaves could lead to some other kind of legal action "which could get the board in trouble." But Atty. Stephen Small, board counsel, said the college's labor counsel in Chicago had recommended the board consider such requests on a case-by-case basis and not make any general policy.

The board last night also heard reports from Dr. Donald Moely of the music department and Dr. Harold Robinson of the social science department.

Robinson told of LMC's program called an "observation laboratory" in which students studying to become teachers or teacher-aides spend a minimum of four hours a week in local high schools working in classrooms with students. He noted this enables the students to decide early in their college education whether teaching would be the profession they want, and said the program has been very successful.

Moely reported four performing groups this summer will visit Switzerland, Austria, Germany, and France as part of a cultural exchange program. He said the 68 people in the four groups either raise funds or pay their own way and will perform musical concerts during the trip.

Radde noted the trip "will not cost the college a penny."

Dowagiac Church Is One Short In Parking Lot Vote

DOWAGIAC — Proposed vacating of Merchant street for an expanded church parking lot fell one vote short of approval at last night's Dowagiac city council meeting.

Even though the vote on the request by the Holy Maternity Catholic Church was three to one in favor of the proposal, City Atty. Herbert Phillips Jr. said that a two-thirds majority, or four votes, was needed for approval.

Voting yes were councilmen David Groner, Joseph Silvia and Clarence Solf. Councilman Robert Hess voted no. Absent were council members DeVoe Hunsberger and Marilee Oppenheim.

The church has sought vacation of the one-block street between Front and McOmber street. Its parking lot is adjacent to Merchant and no homes face the street.

Last night's vote, however, does not mean that the proposal is dead, even though petitions signed by 25 area residents opposed to the vacation were presented to the council. Groner said he wanted the request placed on the agenda for the next meeting and Hess indicated he would like the church to prepare sketches showing how the lot would be expanded.

Bill Easton, 315 North Front street, presented the petitions against the proposal. He said it was felt closing the street would cause additional traffic problems on nearby streets.

Henry Graper Jr., city manager, said the street had been closed on a trial basis for four months and the city had received no complaints.

In other areas, the council approved sending a final application for $380,000 in federal community development funds to the department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD). The city's preliminary application for the 1977 grant funds has already been approved by HUD.

The funds are being sought to fund a variety of projects, including $156,470 for street, sewer and gutter improvements; $85,000 for housing rehabilitation loans and grants, and $40,000 for park improvements.

Extension of Donald LaPointe's lease of the Cass county Memorial airport to Jan. 20, 1978, was approved by the council. Graper said the extension would expire the same time as LaPointe's contract as airport manager and both items could be negotiated at the same time in the future.

Declaration of May 2-8 as cleanup week in the city was approved. Also okayed was a request by the Dowagiac Lions club that April 25-May 1 be declared White Cane week and the group be allowed to solicit funds on April 29 and 30.

Williams In Good Shape

Benton Harbor Mayor Joel Patterson reported last night that Commissioner Alfred Williams, who has been absent from city commission meetings since Jan. 31, is in "excellent shape" at Hines Memorial hospital in Chicago. Patterson said he and Commissioner Arnold Bolin visited Williams last week. Williams, 49, of 780 Wauwata, was admitted to the hospital Feb. 11 to undergo tests.

Paw Paw Vote Rejects Request From Teachers

By DENNIS COGSWELL
Paw Paw Bureau

PAW PAW — The Paw Paw school board voted last night not to voluntarily recognize the Van Buren County Education Association as the collective bargaining unit for Paw Paw teachers.

The recognition request was made by Harold Larsen, county representative for the Michigan Education Association, who told the board that over half of Paw Paw's teachers had signed cards indicating they favored an election to determine if they would be represented by the county association.

The teachers are currently represented by the Paw Paw Education Association.

Darrell Crose, administrative assistant, recommended that the board not stipulate, saying he had not seen the cards and that it appeared that there might be some disagreement over what personnel would be included in any new bargaining unit.

Crose also said in essence that representation by the county association could strengthen the teachers' negotiating power. He said the next step will be for school and union members to meet with a representative of the Michigan Employment Relations Commission who will determine whether enough signed cards have been gathered to call an election.

Voting in favor of not recognizing the county association were Douglas Howe, Betty Rasmussen, Gloria Jean Berry, William Rhodes, Robert LaFue and Kenneth Taylor. Board member Robert Teske, who is a Hartford teacher, abstained.

In other areas, the board voted 5-2 to appropriate up to $500 for the marching band to attend a camp at Michigan State University Aug. 1-6. Rhodes and Teske, who voted against the appropriation, expressed concern that other school groups attending camps did not receive any subsidies from the board.

The board approved a tentative 1977-78 budget which will be submitted to the county tax allocation board calling for expenditures of $3,461,451, a 5.3 per cent increase over this year's budgeted expenses of $3,286,229. Supt. Dr. Norval S. Boyce said nearly all the increase is ticketed for salary increases.

The board referred to the curriculum committee a request by John Deren of the county substance abuse program to set up an alcohol, tobacco, and drug abuse prevention program. Deren proposed that the board hire a person under the CETA program who would work with teachers, students, and community groups.

R.T. Brundage Roofing was awarded a $4,765 contract to replace the roof on the high school library, and Hookstra Roofing a $7,935 contract to replace a section of the roof at the Michigan Avenue school. Both firms were low bidders.

Teske was appointed to represent the board at a June 8 election to determine two members of the Van Buren intermediate school board. George Fusko, a Decatur high school biology teacher who is seeking election to the board, attended last night's meeting and asked for the support of the Paw Paw board.

Galien Students Must Take Part In Gym Classes

GALIEN — The Galien school board last night denied a request by parents of three students that the students be excused from co-educational physical education classes because of religious beliefs, but made some allowances.

The board ruled that under the federal anti-sex discrimination Title 9 provision, co-educational physical education is mandatory and students cannot be excused.

The request came from Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Abrahamson who asked that their son, a sixth grader and two daughters, in the ninth and 10th grades, be excused citing Pentecostal Church articles of faith.

Abrahamson said the articles state in part that "there is no article of dress which would be suitable for our girls to wear while engaging in calisthenics and exercises" with boys present.

The board did agree to allow the girls to wear culottes and the boy may wear a sweat suit. The board, however, agreed that when the children deem an activity unsuitable they may choose not to participate and the teacher may either give no credit or may allow a make-up. Normal gymwear for students is shorts and T-shirts.

Dr. Robert Tilmann, school superintendent, said while the Title 9 provision does not take effect until next year, Galien began the program at the beginning of the second semester. He said "We're not in favor of the coed classes," adding that a bill is currently being introduced in the House of Representatives in Washington D.C. that would modify some sections of Title 9 including coeducational physical education.

In other action, the board appointed Richard Rogers to fill out the unexpired term of Jack Estep, who resigned from the board last month because he is being transferred from the district. The position will be filled at the June 13 election. The board also named Alfred Glugh as board vice-president to replace Estep.

The board approved requests from William Deal, high school band director to hold a four-week summer band camp and one-week marching band clinic at the school. The board approved paying Deal a total of 11 days at his regular salary.

Mrs. Tania Huncjager, community education director was granted a request by the board for $1,300 for a summer recreation program, $600 of which will go for a director and the remainder for expenses and equipment. Mrs. Huncjager also reported that summer school classes in mathematics, English, social studies and science would be held at a cost of $30 per class or two classes for $50. She said a total of 35 junior high students had failed at least one class and could make up the classes during the summer session.

The board voted to establish a 20-minute portion of each meeting for visitor comments and concerns in an effort to encourage more school district resident participation in school board meetings. The board also voted to allow residents to submit requests for agenda discussion. Those must be submitted at least five days prior to board meetings.

Three district residents were appointed by the board to the Berrien intermediate school district parent advisory committee for special education. They are Mrs. Janet Begin, Mrs. Janet Shaffer and Mrs. Lloyd Urns, all of Galien.

The board approved a resolution setting rules and regulations for attendance at national conferences by board members and administrators. The action limits the amount of reimbursements to $500 and limits travel to two board members and one administrator per year.

The board accepted the resignation of Mrs. Jane Sheeley, a secretary in the system for the past 23 years. She is currently secretary to David J. Porrell, administrative assistant.

Eau Claire Fills Council Vacancy

EAU CLAIRE — Glenn Bartel, owner-operator of a restaurant here, was appointed to the Eau Claire village council last night to fill the vacancy created by the March resignation of Clois Puchen.

Bartel, 59, owns the Corner Cue restaurant. He is married and has four children. He will serve until the village elections next March.

Puchen had served on the council for almost 10 years, ac-ording to village officials. The appointment was made by the village council.

In other action last night, the council voted to create an industrial development district requested by Shawnee Specialties Co., a lead and zinc die cast firm that wants to put up a $109,412 building.

If the council subsequently approves an industrial facility exemption certificate, the firm will have to pay only half the tax rate on the new plant addition. The tax break is allowed under state law.

Also last night, the council adopted a 1977-78 general fund budget of $93,624, which is about $8,327 more than the 1976-77 budget of $85,297.

Along with the budget, the council reduced the village property tax levy for the coming fiscal year from 17.6 mills to 16 mills.

While the general fund tax levy went from nine to 10 mills, and the streets millage increased from 3.2 to 4.5 mills, the sewer tax was lowered from three to 1.5 mills and a 2.4-mill debt levy to pay off city hall construction bonds expired, according to village officials.

As a part of the budget approval, the council gave 10 per cent pay raises to Fred Rumbaugh, the village maintenance man, and to his wife Carol, the deputy village clerk. Under the raises effective July 4, he will receive $258 weekly and she will get $171.

The two received no pay raises last year.

Raises for part-time police officers who patrol the village on weekends and holidays were tabled.

Kenneth Karnes, the village assessor, was hired for the additional duties as street administrator at a pay of $300 yearly.

Village Clerk Ruth Sharp said the council agreed to table for an indefinite period a possible increase in water rates.

approved by the commission Feb. 28. Construction plans are now being prepared by the city's engineering firm of Consoer, Townsend & Associates.

The commission voted to hire the John G. Yerington Construction Co. to demolish and clear a house on city-owned property at 310 Church street for $2,378.

The firm was the lowest of three bidders. The property is to be included in part of the downtown office district.

The commission heard the owner of an eight-unit apartment building at 822 Ship street report that electrical and plumbing repairs had been completed and roofing repairs were scheduled to begin within a day or two.

The repairs had been ordered completed within 90 days by the commission during a public hearing last month on the condition of the building.

The owner, John P. Tiffany, of 2126 US-33 North, Benton township, was also ordered to appear before the commission every 30 days with a status report.

names of students now in the district's computer listings. Larry Rankens, group director of business and finances, was designated to develop the alternate procedures to keep the listings current. The census or acceptable alternate procedures are called for in a new state law.

Board members extended the lease of the Skill Center building from Whirlpool Corp. for another year, through June 29, 1978. As has been done, the board will not pay a regular lease fee, but agreed to pay the property tax on the building. Edward Troffer, group director of operations and facilities, indicated the tax payment is about $4,000. The district has leased the building from Whirlpool since 1970.

In other actions last night, the board:

—Expressed appreciation to Mrs. Brenda Burns of 510 West Napier, Benton Harbor, for the gift of an American flag to Johnson school.

—Learned that Margaret Southworth, Sterne Branson kindergarten teacher who has taught in the district since 1937, and Leah Schwartz, a lower IGE teacher at Calvin British school, are retiring at the close of the school year.

—Placed two teachers on permanent tenure: Timothy Bergen who completed probation in one year, and Lora Peoples, who served three years on probation.

Berrien Springs-Oronoko Police Projecting Deficit

BERRIEN SPRINGS — The Berrien Springs village-Oronoko township police department will operate on a deficit budget in 1977-78, according to a report given to the Berrien Springs village council last night by Rex Koetsier, village trustee and chairman of the police commission.

Koetsier said the $177,833 projected budget is based on subsidies of $73,000 each from Oronoko township and Berrien Springs village or $146,000. "If there is not some more money found, we will have to cut services," said Koetsier. He suggested a combined millage vote by the township and village to provide funds for operating the police department at the present level of services.

The police board will begin negotiating the police contract Monday, April 25, with the Fraternal Order of Police, the recognized negotiating agent for the policemen. Koetsier said.

The requests which policemen say they will submit as "non-economic" proposals would, if accepted, "cost an additional $30,000," said Koetsier.

In a public hearing on federal revenue sharing funds, held just prior to the regular meeting, the council received a written request for $3,000 to be used as part of the matching portion of a grant for new facilities for the Central County Senior Citizens Center. Barbara Williams, director of the center, said in her letter that the organization is seeking "about $40,000" through Title VI of the Older Americans Act, to purchase a larger building for the center.

Mrs. Williams said $10,000 in matching funds are required, and the center will pledge to raise $5,000 through private donations. If the village will contribute the other $5,000 from revenue sharing funds.

The senior citizens' request will be considered at a special

State May Gauge Rum In Rumcake

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The state Liquor Control Commission has been asked to determine just how much rum is in a new rumcake faced with the stuff in case it goes on sale in Michigan.

The request came from the Rev. Allen B. Rice II, executive director of the Michigan Council on Alcohol Problems, which also asked the commission to determine what restrictions should be placed on sale of the "Babarum" cakes now being test marketed in Massachusetts, California, New York and Minnesota.

He also asked the commission to determine what restrictions should be placed on the sale of the cakes.

Bert Barker, a California legislative aide, says each cake contains an eighth of an ounce of rum, and "A five- or six-year-old kid can buy these cakes in stores out here."

The Italian-made cakes, distributed by Progresso Foods Corp. of Jersey City, N.J., are exempt from federal controls on the sales of alcohol.

James Mahr, Progresso's national sales manager, commented, "People are blowing this out of proportion to get newspaper."

He said he had never felt the effects of alcohol from eating the rumcakes and feels "perfectly safe" in letting his own children eat the cakes.

Hard School Paddlings Approved By High Court

WASHINGTON (AP) — Corporal punishment in public schools, no matter how severe, does not violate constitutional protections against cruel and unusual punishment, the Supreme Court ruled today.

In a 5-4 decision, the court said schoolchildren have no legal recourse when spanked or paddled by teachers and school administrators, even when the punishment is proven to be excessive.

The court majority said the Constitution's Eighth Amendment protection against cruel and unusual punishment applies only to those persons convicted of a crime.

"The prisoner and the schoolchild stand in wholly different circumstances, separated by the harsh facts of criminal conviction and incarceration," the majority opinion written by Justice Lewis F. Powell Jr. said.

"We adhere to this longstanding limitation and hold that the Eighth Amendment does not apply to the paddling of children as a means of maintaining discipline in public schools," Powell said.

Powell was joined by Chief Justice Warren E. Burger and Justices Potter Stewart, Harry A. Blackmun and William H. Rehnquist.

'Groucho' Feud Lands In Court

By RICHARD SALTUS
Associated Press Writer

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP)

A judge has heard testimony that an "oblivious" Groucho Marx was cursed by his caretaker as she tried to get him to endorse two checks, while syringes filled with a dangerous sleeping drug were found dumped outside his house.

These and other tales emerged Monday as two private detectives took the stand at a hearing before Superior Court Judge Edward Rafeedie.

Attorneys for Marx's son, Arthur, asked for the hearing on grounds someone may be trying to harm the 86-year-old comedian. They contend that Marx's manager and companion for seven years, Erin Fleming, has been "acting quite out of sorts as to her role as conservator."

Miss Fleming, an attractive woman of about 40, is seeking to be appointed permanent conservator of his estate. Arthur Marx is contesting the action.

In other testimony Monday, Dr. George Stevenson, who analyzed residue in the used syringes, said he found Nembutal, a barbiturate that could cause confusion, loss of coordination or even death. Moreover, the doctor said, it would be unwise for someone Marx's age to be given the drug by injection unless he were "a maniacal psychiatric patient or someone with convulsions."

The hearing has heard no evidence that the syringes were actually used to give Marx injections. They were found, along with a pill bottle bearing the comedian's name, by a private investigator outside Marx's home on Easter Sunday.

Investigator Norman Perle said Miss Fleming hired him to search for bugging devices at the Marx home. He and associate Fred Wolfson said that while at the home, they saw:

—Miss Fleming with a bag of drugs, prescribed for Marx, that she said she planned to destroy. Perle said this occurred after he brought the discarded syringes to her attention.

—Miss Fleming bartering Marx with obscenities in an effort to get him to endorse two checks. During the episode, said Wolfson, "In my opinion, he was oblivious to the whole thing. I don't think he knew what was going on."

In addition, said the investigators, Miss Fleming demanded return of the syringes and drugs found in the storm drain and opposed plans by the investigators to have them analyzed.

consumers should pay higher energy costs."

Dingell had qualified praise for the President, claiming he did "an excellent job at describing the problem." But he said Carter undermined his own energy program earlier Monday by calling for tight new auto emission standards — standards Dingell contends will make cars less fuel-efficient.

"The President's major failures in terms of auto emission areas raise questions about the balance of his program," said Dingell, chairman of a key House energy subcommittee and an outspoken advocate of less stringent auto emission standards.

Carter told Americans, "I'm sure each of you will find something you don't like about the specifics of our proposal." And that appeared equally true of congressional Democrats.

Carter must rely on to get his program approved.

Rep. Morris Udall, D-Ariz., House Interior Committee chairman, said "the general thrust of the President's statement was good," but Carter should "urge more competition in the energy industry," and support some form of divestiture, or break-up, of major oil firms.

Calling It A Coincidence

CADILLAC, Mich. (AP) — A federal agency's call about Michigan Chemical Corp.'s fire retardants nearly one month before PBB was found mixed into livestock feed was just a coincidence, says an official for the chemical firm. Dr. A. Fred Kerst, Michigan Chemical vice president for research and engineering, testified Monday during the state's first PBB contamination trial that he was uncertain which agency was represented by the person who called him in March 1974. As have other Michigan Chemical officials, Kerst contended he first learned PBB had been mixed into feed on April 19, 1974. Kerst said he happened to be at his firm's Chicago headquarters when a Michigan Farm Bureau Services official called with news of the mixup. Kerst, who was the firm's director of research when the accident occurred, said the caller only asked about the firm's fire-retardant products in general and gave no reason for his inquiry. Kerst said he was hired by Michigan Chemical in 1971 because the company saw a chance to boost its flame-retardant sales under new government regulations covering autos and sleepwear. He noted only a limited amount of ground PBB ever was used for either product.

Pill Rule Center Of Fight

DETROIT (AP) — A coalition headed by the state Public Health Department says it will fight a court rule limiting distribution of contraceptives to teen-agers. The Reproductive Health Rights Council was formed to oppose a March 7 ruling by U.S. District Court Judge Noel Fox that a Lansing agency must consult parents before giving contraceptive devices to minors living at home. Previously, family planning centers in Michigan and elsewhere had provided contraceptives to minors on a confidential basis. The Reproductive Health Rights Council was created by the American Civil Liberties Union, the Tri-County Family Planning Center and the state health department. Declaring an "epidemic of teenage pregnancy" is sweeping the state, the council cited a recent study by the health department showing more than 42 per cent of women in Michigan between the ages of 15-19 have sex. Three-fourths of these are unmarried, the study found, with most running the risk of unwanted pregnancy. Judge Fox's ruling is being appealed to the 6th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Cincinnati by the Ingham County Board of Health.

Benefits Will Continue

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Supplemental unemployment payments will continue until Jan. 31, 1978, under a federal program agreed to by Gov. William Milliken. Milliken signed an agreement Monday which will restart and continue the Federal Supplemental Benefit (FSB) program for 50,200 recipients in Michigan. The program has provided up to an extra 26 weeks of benefits to jobless workers, extending total maximum benefits to 65 weeks. The program was halted March 26, but Congress passed a law extending it until Jan. 31, 1978. The Michigan Employment Security Commission will resume making FSB payments immediately, the governor's office said. However, the program will be reduced from 26 weeks to 13 weeks on April 30. That means benefits will be available to a maximum 52 weeks.

Buchanan Schools' 2.4 Mills OK'd

BUCHANAN — In a special election yesterday, Buchanan school district voters approved renewal of a 2.4-mill school operating tax levy.

School officials reported the unofficial vote count was 886 to 484 to renew the levy for one Hills grade school and make further cuts in personnel and supplies to balance the 1977-78 budget.

The board in seeking approval of the millage had reported some $160,000 would have to be cut from staff and programs and textbooks; elimination of the string music program; and cutbacks in the high school wood shop and mechanical drawing programs as well as German, home economics and the community education program.

Robert Luke, school board member, said students could get a lot more from the industrial arts program than German and he could not support further cuts in the industrial arts area.

An amendment by Luke requesting the board to "look for appropriate funds so as to avoid cutting the industrial arts program" was included in the adoption of the cutbacks.

In other areas during the board meeting, the board voted to retain the Michigan Association of School Boards to represent the district in contract negotiations with teachers.

In a related action, the board voted not to voluntarily approve a request from the association representing the teachers to have a regional teachers organization become the bargaining agent for teachers. The teachers seek to have the 4-C Education Association made up of teachers from Buchanan, New Buffalo, River Valley, Brandywine, Niles and Edwardsburg as bargaining agent with the district.

Brian Steinke, president of the Buchanan Education association, said he would meet Thursday with representatives of the state Department of Labor to present a petition asking the change. The petition, he said, was signed by 95 teachers in the district.

A recommendation by Dale Cryan, principal of the middle school, to reduce the number of daily class periods at the middle school from seven to six beginning with the 1977-78 school year was approved. Cryan said study halls and free periods would be dropped and result in an estimated $7,869 savings. A census of people from 1 to 26 in the district was approved. Dr. Earl Hogan, schools superintendent, said the census would cost around $3,000. The board again declined to spell out specifics for voting not to rehire Michael Morse, high school band director, after this school year ends. In voting its decision, the board cited discipline and performance quality as reasons.

Backers of Morse sought the reasons and his reinstatement.

VOTE SPARES SCHOOL: Renewal of a 2.4-mill property tax levy by Buchanan school voters yesterday means Indian Hills elementary school, located north of city on Main street road, will remain open next year. School officials said earlier school would have closed if millage issue had been defeated. (Staff photo)

The issue is expected to produce about $160,000 towards the district's tentative 1977-78 budget of $3.24 million. It will keep the district's operating tax rate for 1977 at 28.776 mills. Another 3 mills will be levied to meet debt retirement requirements.

Passage of the issue cancelled board plans to close the Indian anyway to bring projected expenses in line. The board, meeting in regular session in the Indian Hills schools last night, voted to adopt the expense cuts.

Involved will be a teaching staff reduction of the equivalent of 7.5 teachers; lower salaries for some administrators; a reduction of the custodial staff by one; reductions in supplies

BOND SALE ISSUE ALSO ON BALLOT

Dowagiac Schools Set Tax Vote

DOWAGIAC — The Dowagiac school board last night voted to put two money issues on the June 13 annual school election ballot.

Put on the ballot were renewal of a 15-mill property tax levy for school operations and a request for authority to issue and sell $350,000 in bonds for an energy-conservation program at six schools.

The board is seeking the 15-mill property tax levy renewal for two years, and added to the nine mills from the Cass county allocation, would give the district an operating levy of 24 mills, the same as this year.

If approved, the 15-mill levy would raise about $1,260,000 — based on the present $84 million tax base the first year. The school's tentative 1977-78 budget is $6,639,459.

Approval of the second ballot issue, the sale of $350,000 in bonds, would enable the district to insulate roofs, classroom ceilings and make other changes that would save the district more in fuel costs than the bond issue, school officials said. The bond issue would be paid off with a debt retirement levy of about .45 of a mill. Also on the ballot will be a four-year term on the board.

In other areas, the board voted to build a 50 by 150-foot auto repairs classroom on the southwest corner of Prairie Road and Lowe streets. Cost of the project was estimated at $275,000 and was to be financed from existing funds. The board approved the appointment of Richard Dorgan, athletic director, to the additional job of assistant high school principal. He succeeds Richard Boles who last month was named high school principal.

The board voted its support of a proposed one-mill tax levy for special education programs that the Cass county intermediate school district is expected to put on a countywide ballot at a yet undetermined date.

The board also set at $18,500 the salary for former McKinley principal Herbert Burden who last month was named group director for maintenance.

Supt. Lionel Stacey said the school will present its views at a May 4 hearing in Dowagiac on the proposed closing of the Beeson and Telegraph streets rail crossings. Amtrak wants the crossings closed as part of a general upgrading of the track from Ann Arbor to Niles. Other crossings in other counties are also involved.

The board voted to send 40 high school students to the Elkhart career center next school year at a cost of $825 per student, and to send seven students to a cosmetology school in Sister Lakes.

Couple Withdraws Suit Against Niles Surgeon

By SCOTT WILLIAMSON
Staff Writer

A Dowagiac couple withdrew their malpractice suit against a Niles surgeon yesterday in Berrien Circuit court and the doctor pledged he would not file any type of malicious prosecution suit against the couple.

Dismissed at the request of Diane and Clayton Goff, Jr., was the suit they had filed which sought $900,000 damages stemming from operations allegedly performed on the woman in 1973 and 1974.

Judge Zoe S. Burkholz granted the dismissal with prejudice and without costs, meaning the same suit cannot again be filed by the Goffs.

F.H. Lindenfeld, M.D., defendant in the suit, told the Goffs in a letter included in the court file: "I assure each of you that as a medical practitioner, I can bear no animosity to any medical patient of mine and that I have no intention of filing any action against you and that, in fact, I will file no action against either of you related in any way to the suit that you brought against me."

"I have contested this case vigorously with the assistance of my counsel. I am absolutely confident my defense has merit. Even so, I accept your offer to voluntarily drop your suit with prejudice to any and all claims against me."

The Goffs had filed suit in February, 1976, claiming Mrs. Goff became pregnant after a sterilization operation and that additional complications necessitated a complete hysterectomy. They contended she underwent a sterilization operation in September, 1973, but a pregnancy occurred and an abortion and another operation were performed in February, 1974.

The suit claimed Mrs. Goff was treated by Dr. Lindenfeld until Aug. 28, 1974, when alleged complications required further surgery, including a hysterectomy.

"Following the receipt of the medical reports and the reviews by their experts and because of the cost involved, my clients have requested that I move this court to dismiss and withdraw the complaint," Atty. Cordell R. Jones of Marcellus told Judge Burkholz.

St. Joseph Atty. John T. Ryan, co-counsel for Dr. Lindenfeld, said the physician authorized him to take no stand in opposition to the dismissal, but "I am not stipulating to dismissal of the case because Dr. Lindenfeld wishes the record to demonstrate clearly that there has been no settlement."

His co-counsel, St. Joseph Atty. George Keller, said he also had no objection but "I want to (make it clear) that not only is no payment proceeding or any consideration of any kind going from Dr. Lindenfeld to the plaintiffs in this action, but there is not a penny being paid by Dr. Lindenfeld's insurance carrier."

Judge Burkholz praised both sides in the case. "I want to commend both parties for the manner in which this is being handled. I understand that the suit was brought in good faith."

"Mr. Jones is to be very much commented when he finds that his action is without merit or comes to the conclusion that he cannot prevail, that he comes in and seeks a voluntary dismissal. His clients are also to be commended."

"Certainly the court has understanding of the position of Dr. Lindenfeld, who is a practitioner of sizeable good repute in the community, that he does not want a malpractice action settled that he has denied liability (in) vigorously throughout the entire matter."

Red Cross Bloodmobile Stops At Bridgman April 26

BRIDGMAN — The Berrien county chapter of the American Red Cross needs 1,864 pints of blood to reach its goal this fiscal year. A Red Cross spokesman said that to date, the blood program has received 4,136 pints of donated blood toward its goal of 6,000 for the year ending June 30.

The next blood donor drive will be in Bridgman, April 26, where the bloodmobile will set up at the American Legion hall. The Red Cross spokesman said it is looking for 150 pints from the Bridgman area. The Berrien county blood donation goal is based on county population and history of usage, the Red Cross spokesman said.

Lawton Board Upholds Firing Of Bus Driver

LAWTON — The Lawton school board voted last night to uphold the firing of a bus driver terminated last December by Supt. Ray Bandlow for alleged insubordination.

Bandlow said he fired driver Beverly Johnson after she held a "sit-in" in his office because she was unhappy over having been reprimanded. He said she was reprimanded because she refused to allow a student to ride her bus.

Mrs. Johnson had requested and received a public hearing on the firing before the board March 17. No action had been taken at that time.

In other areas, the board voted to "pink slip" 11 probationary and two tenure teachers. Bandlow said the lay offs were primarily precautionary and predicted most of the teachers would be retained for next year.

He said the lay offs were tied to the June 13 election in which voters are being asked to renew a 17.27-mill property tax levy and approve an extra .75-mill levy for school operations. The levies will be included in one proposal for a three-year period.

A report by the Automobile Club of Michigan read last night indicated there is no need for a crossing guard or blinker light on Second street next to the elementary school. Bandlow said a parents' group had petitioned for a light, claiming the crossing to the playground across the street is dangerous. He said the auto club report found the safety patrol guard to be adequate.

Bandlow urged board members to oppose a pending state law which would force contractors to pay the prevailing wage on any school projects. Enactment of the law would increase school costs and reduce the number of local contractors willing to bid on school projects, Bandlow told the board.

The building and grounds committee reported it would seek bids on insulating roofs of the elementary, middle and high schools as an energy-saving measure.

King Fighting To Save Reputation And Tournament

NEW YORK (AP) — The United States Boxing Championships are staggering under a variety of charges, with Don King fighting not only to save the tournament but his reputation as a top — if not the top — boxing promoter.

With the nationally televised tournament under investigation by a federal grand jury and under suspension by ABC-TV, its bankroller, King, suspended his boxing consultants Paddy Flood, Al Braverman and Gordon Peterson Monday.

Flood and Braverman, fight managers who are connected with several fighters in the tournament, have been charged with favoritism and accepting kickbacks. A grand jury in Baltimore is investigating the charges.

King said he talked with Flood, Braverman and Peterson Monday morning, and it was agreed the consultants should suspend their activities.

"There will be no attempts at any coverage," said King, adding he considers himself a good promoter but not "a supreme boxing authority."

"For input and knowledge I have been dependent on my consultants and my staff," King said. "If I and the boxing public have been victimized let the punishment be unyieldingly severe."

"Let the chips fall where they may," said King, denying any wrongdoing and adding: "The buck does indeed stop with Don King, the employer, and I am the first to urge for vigorous and truthful fact finding."

In announcing the suspension about three hours before the scheduled telecast of some tournament semifinals from Miami Beach Saturday, ABC Sports said it agreed with its attorneys that counsel should "appoint a totally independent special investigator with impeccable law enforcement credentials to head up the investigation."

There was no announcement Monday of the investigator who, King said, will replace the tournament committee, headed by James A. Farley Jr., chairman of the New York State Athletic Commission, in conducting an inquiry.

ABC also said it felt the competition had been compromised by the fact that "records of numerous fighters in the tournament as listed in the 1977 Ring Record Book are, in fact, inaccurate and contain many fights which apparently never took place."

Nat Loubet, publisher of The Ring Magazine, whose U.S. rankings were a basis for the tournament, said there had been inaccuracies in the records of 11 tournament fighters.

Loubet identified four of those fighters, the only ones remaining in the tournament, as featherweight Richard Rozelle of Detroit, lightweight Greg Coverson of Detroit, light heavyweight Vonzie Johnson of Columbus and welterweight Floyd Mayweather of Cleveland. They all fight out of Kalamazoo, Mich., under the management of Henry Grooms.

Loubet said Grooms had sent a letter to Farley, with copies to ABC and The Ring, stating that he had provided The Ring with inaccurate records and that he apologized.

Rozelle, Coverson and Johnson would have been top contenders in their divisions in the U.S. rankings without the false fights, but Mayweather, whose loss was a knockout, might not have been, said Loubet. The last published rankings, in April, had Mayweather No. 8 and the others each fifth.

Loubet said Grooms wrote that his records sent to The Ring added four victories to Rozelle's 1976 record to make him 12-0, three to Coverson's 1976 mark to make him 12-0, three to Johnson's 1976 mark to make him 16-0 and five to Mayweather's record last year to make him 16-1.

Grooms told The Associated Press by telephone: "I don't see what difference it makes as to how many fights my boys have had" in regard to the tournament. "Keeping records for all the fighters is quite a job, especially when we have a couple of inexperienced girls (secretaries) to do it."

Loubet also identified a fighter who, ABC said in its statement, had sent the network an affidavit that he had been "contacted by a would-be manager who told him he could get him rated in Ring Magazine's top ten U.S. rankings, although he had not fought in a year and had never been ranked before."

The Ring publisher said the fighter was middleweight Ike Fluellen of Houston. He said The Ring had been suspicious of Fluellen's record and had told the tournament committee. Fluellen was not given a spot in the tournament.

It is not known if and when the tournament will resume, but King and ABC are scheduled to book up May 16 with Muhammad Ali's heavyweight title defense against Alfredo Evangelista of Spain.

The Ring gives Evangelista's record as 13-1. Eddie Mafuz, who said he was Evangelista's U.S. representative, told reporters at a news conference announcing the fight that Evangelista's record was 16-1.

Drayton Runs Away With Marathon Title

BOSTON (AP) — Canadian marathon ace Jerome Drayton felt he was caught in "a free-for-all" at the start of the 81st Boston Marathon. He admitted he was scared. So he did what any intelligent good runner would do. He ran away from the pack.

Drayton, run into the pavement by Bill Rodgers' record shattering run for glory just two years ago, gained sweet revenge Monday as he buried the Boston school teacher and went on to win the 26-mile, 385-yard Patriots' Day classic in 2 hours, 14 minutes, 46 seconds.

"It was a real hassle, like a free-for-all at the start," Drayton said after the race which attracted a record field of 2,933 official starters. "I got jostled, booted, kicked around. There was no notice when the gun was going off."

"It went off suddenly. One guy grabbed my shirt and nearly pulled me down. I got kicked in the ankle at the start and I thought I was a goner. However, I was able to recover and the ankle didn't bother me the rest of the way, although it's a little stiff right now."

Rodgers, whose 2:09:55 clocking was the fastest marathon ever run by an American when he was a surprise winner in 1975, and Drayton, who had to give up the fight and quit two miles from the finish in that race, hooked up in a duel as expected. However, it didn't last as long as most experts had figured.

Rodgers, who beat 1972 Olympic champion Frank Shorter in New York last fall and won the Kyoto Marathon in Japan a few weeks ago, held a stride lead over Drayton at the third checkpoint, 13.4 miles from the start.

Then Drayton, a 32-year-old German-born government employee in Toronto, began to apply the pressure. Rodgers accepted a cup of water from his wife, then appeared to stagger. By the time he reached the fourth checkpoint, 17.5 miles along the route, Drayton had nearly a one-minute lead.

The expected duel on three hills, including "Heartbreak" about six miles from the finish, never materialized. Rodgers failed to make them, finally being forced to quit the race.

As others who had to keep up with Drayton and Rodgers faded, Veli Bally, Turkey's Balkan and Pakistan champion, moved up to take second in 2:15:41. Brian Maxwell, a Canadian teaching at Berkeley, Calif., was third in 2:17:21, followed by Ron Wayne of Alameda, Calif., in 2:18:18, and Vince Fleming of Boston in 2:18:37.

Miki Gorman, a 42-year-old Japanese-American housewife from the San Fernando Valley in California, topped a field of 126 women for her second Boston Marathon championship.

He Doesn't Recall Finishing Race

BOSTON (AP) — Steve Ludemann was the 599th runner to cross the finish line in the 81st Boston Marathon, but he doesn't remember it.

"The last thing I remember I had three blocks to go. The next thing I knew I woke up in here," he said Monday, gazing blankly around a temporary medical center in the Prudential Center garage, where about 600 other finishers with muscle cramps, blood blisters and dehydration lay on rows of wrestling mats and canvas cots.

Ludemann was one of about 30 casualties in the field of 2,933 who had to be carried on stretchers from the finish to the medical center for treatment by 25 volunteer doctors. Five were sent to the hospital — four for heat exhaustion and one for a head injury suffered when he collapsed onto the pavement. None was in serious condition.

The dimly lit garage was littered with runners who had won the battle — completing the 26-mile, 385-yard course — but lay huddled under yellow plastic disposable blankets wondering if it was worth it.

"A lot of the better runners were deceived by the talk on the radio about ideal running weather and temperatures in the 50s," said Dr. Lyle Mechell, director of sports medicine at Children's Hospital. "They pushed too hard at first, not realizing how hot it was."

It was 61 degrees at 3 p.m. when most of the marathoners were finishing, but with the sun beating down from a cloudless sky, it seemed much hotter. In last year's race, when 91-degree heat made the runners more cautious, there were fewer cases of heat exhaustion among those who finished in under three hours, Mechell said.

Among those fooled by the forecast was Ludemann, a 32-year-old resident of Marlborough, Conn. Determined to run 10 minutes faster than the 2:47 he did in his first marathon last fall, he ran a six-minute-a-mile pace for 15 miles before faltering.

Still he struggled up Heartbreak Hill in Newton and approached the Prudential Center before his mind went blank. His wife, Marti, told him later that he had kept going.

"I saw him a block from the finish and he was barely walking," she said. "He was very pale and sick looking. Then I lost sight of him in the crowd. I couldn't see whether he finished by himself or if they had to carry him across."

"Nobody has died yet running the Boston Marathon and none of these injuries is serious," said Dr. Thomas Connolly, the marathon's medical director for 22 years. "They're suffering what we in sports medicine call diseases of excellence. For the most part, runners are very knowledgeable about training and how to take care of themselves."

But defeat hung heavy in the garage. Asked if he would run another marathon, Ludemann shook his head. "No way."

It was vintage Hrabosky Monday night after the relief ace of the St. Louis Cardinals surrendered a home run to Dave Kingman of the New York Mets leading off the ninth inning. That cut the Cards' lead to 3-2, and woke up the Mad Hungarian.

"That made me mad, because he laughed at me while he was running around the bases," said Hrabosky. "That got the adrenalin flowing. I think that's 75, 80, 90 per cent of the game."

Hrabosky's first three pitches to the next batter, Ed Kranepool, were balls. But then Kranepool, thinking Hrabosky was taking too much time, stepped out of the batter's box.

That brought out the Mad Hungarian in all his glory.

Hrabosky stalked off the mound. He pounded the ball into his glove. He adjusted his cap. He stood with his back to home plate and went into deep meditation.

Home plate umpire Ed Sudol came out and warned Hrabosky not to delay the game. "He just told me to keep from making the game a circus," said Hrabosky. "I couldn't blame him."

So Hrabosky settled down to the task at hand. He struck out Kranepool. He struck out John Stearns. He struck out Roy Stalder. And he strutted off the mound with his first save of the season. Hrabosky's performance saved the victory for Bob Forsch, 3-0, who allowed just three hits in the 7 1/3 innings he worked.

In other National League games, the Los Angeles Dodgers beat the Cincinnati Reds 7-3, the San Diego Padres pounded the Atlanta Braves 12-4, the Montreal Expos edged the Pittsburgh Pirates 6-5 in 14 innings and the Philadelphia Phillies defeated the Chicago Cubs 3-1.

Los Angeles posted its sixth straight victory, raising its record to 8-2, best in the major leagues, with Steve Garvey's three-run homer in the seventh inning the big blow against the Reds in the nationally televised game.

Gene Tenace smashed two home runs, one a grand slam, and Doug Rader hit a three-run homer and a run-scoring single for San Diego, which also got a solo homer from George Hendrick. Tenace's grand slam came in the sixth inning, when the Padres broke open the game with six runs.

Warren Cromartie led off the 14th inning for the Expos with a double, moved to third on Gary Carter's sacrifice and scored the winning run on Andre Dawson's single through a drawn-in infield.

Phils rookie Randy Lerch pitched no-hit ball for six innings but tired in the seventh when Chicago got three hits and its only run. Ron Reed saved the victory for Lerch. Home runs by Garry Maddox and Mike Schmidt highlighted Philadelphia's attack.

NBA Trying To Break Strike?

NEW YORK (AP) — Richie Phillips, attorney for the striking National Basketball Association referees, says the league is trying to break the 10-day-old walkout by offering "big-money contracts" to three of the striking officials.

"The NBA offered big contracts to three of our senior guys, hoping if they would fold then everyone else would cave in," Phillips said Monday. "Our guys said all the money in the world wouldn't get them to go back to work without the group getting all the things we want."

NBA Deputy Commissioner Simon Gourdine, meanwhile, vehemently denied such offers had been made.

"My response is a complete and total denial," said Gourdine, who has been representing the league in its dispute with the referees. "I know of no such offers. And if any offers were made, they would have had to come from me or at least have been made with my knowledge."

"Our position is that we are prepared to sit down and negotiate playoff fees, on an individual basis. That has always been our position, and it has not changed."

Phillips would not say who had received the offers, other than to identify them as "among our senior guys." That group would include Darrell Garretson, Jake O'Donnell, Joe Gushue, Norm Drucker, Don Murphy, Manny Sokol, Ed Rush and John Vanek.

The National Association of Basketball Referees, which includes 24 of the 26 NBA officials, has been on strike since April 10, the final day of the regular season. Since then the NBA has been using minor league and college officials in their place.

Phillips said he felt the referees already had proved a key point to the NBA.

"The fact that we continue to stay out has to impress the NBA with the firm resolve of the association," said Phillips. "I'm convinced that they misread the situation. They thought the referees wouldn't go on strike, that they were thankful just to have a job. Now they've got to be convinced we're not going to fold."

'Magic' Picks U-M Or MSU This Week

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Lansing Everett basketball star Ervin "Magic" Johnson, considered by many to be the best high school player in the country, says he will soon pick his college — either Michigan State or Michigan.

Johnson said he probably will make his choice by the end of the week.

"I know I want to stay in the state," Johnson said Monday after returning to Lansing from Europe. "But I wanted to wait until I could talk to my dad, because he's always been a big part of my life. I want to see what he thinks, and I want him to know what I want to do."

Johnson, who averaged 32 points a game as he led Everett to the state Class A title last month, said he enjoyed the trip abroad.

The 6-foot-8½ Johnson captained the United States' junior basketball team which won the championship of the Albert Schweitzer International basketball tournament.

Many of the teams were no match for the U.S. players, who sometimes won by 40-point margins.

"It wasn't that we were that great," Johnson said. "But we played as a team. We had a lot of good one-on-one players but we played so well together we did it as a team."

"Believe it or not, we were small," (Pete) Budko (of Township, Mich.) said. "We had a lot of good one-on-one players but we played so well together we did it as a team."

Two Share IHL Honor

DETROIT (AP) — Garth MacGuigan of the Muskegon Mohawks and Ron Zanussi of the Fort Wayne Komets have been voted co-winners as Rookies of the Year in the International Hockey League.

The two rookies were deadlocked in voting Monday by IHL general managers and coaches.

The 6-foot, 180-pound MacGuigan from Charlottetown, Prince Edward Island, was top point-getter for the Mohawks in the 1976-77 season, scoring 54 goals and drawing 31 assists for 85 points. He played in all 78 Mohawk games.

The 5-foot-11, 180-pound Zanussi from Toronto, Ont., notched 33 goals and assisted on 33 for 66 points.

The only other time two players shared rookie of the year honors in the IHL was the 1970-71 season when Corky Acar of the Flint Generals and the Dayton Gems' Herb Howdle received the award.

Reggie Jackson In Middle Of Yank Problems

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent
NEW YORK (AP) — Reggie Jackson admits it's getting to be a phobia with him.

"Controversy follows me around like a black cat," the New York Yankees' $2.9 million bargain basement baby said, flapping away at the latest invisible ghost to haunt him.

"Even when I don't play I cause a controversy. If I were other people, I wouldn't go near my locker. It might be catching."

"But, no, whether I have a good day or bad day or no day at all, they still come around, these reporters, looking for controversy."

"I am baseball's controversy man."

The slugging outfielder admitted that he was not dazed to find himself the catalyst in the latest furor surrounding the affluent, no-punch New York Yankees, who have lost seven of eight games to tumble to the bottom of the American League

East, a division they dominated last year.

"Why not?" said the strapping 200-pounder, with resignation. "It's the story of my life."

Jackson found himself thrust into another volatile situation last Friday night when Manager Billy Martin benched him in a game against the Brewers in Milwaukee.

Reggie, who never felt it necessary to bridle his tongue, had commented idly to reporters that he had a sore left elbow. Martin got first news of it when he read it in the paper. He proceeded to delete the multi-million-dollar commodity from the lineup.

"I don't play crippled players," Martin explained stonily. Jackson indicated that just because his arm hurt that didn't mean he could not play ball.

Steinbrenner III's gold-dust team.

Historians on the scene interpreted it as the first sign of an inevitable chasm between a strong, independent skipper and perhaps the most valuable piece of bric-a-brac in owner Steinbrenner's collection.

It was a case of Billy the Kid showing Steinbrenner who really was boss on the field, one critic surmised. Others called it a "battle of massive egos" on the Yankee team and raised the

"What else is new?" Reggie shrugged his shoulders.

"In eight years at Oakland, they wouldn't let me go out, hit and run like everybody else. After almost every game, they came around building up friction between me and Charlie

"Then I went to Baltimore last season. I joined the team a month late. It was the same. Whether I hit two home runs or went hitless, they surrounded me, looking for a Reggie to kick up some kind of storm."

Martin calls the elbow incident a mountain fashioned from a mole hill adding:

"I got no doghouses. I would play Adolph Hitler and Hirohito if they would help me win."

NY Buried Is Basement Hobson's Homer Defeats Tigers, 5-3

Picked as pre-season favorites to easily sweep to the American League title, the New York Yankees are buried in last place in the East Division.

But Toronto's Otto Velez, who helped drive the Yankees deeper into the cellar Monday, agrees with the prognosticators.

"The Yankees are a good team," Velez said after slamming a home run and driving in two runs. "When those guys get it together they'll start winning some games. They've got everything. But that's what

Velez was a member of the Yankees until being selected by Toronto in the expansion draft last year. He struck out his first two times to the plate in his first trip back to Yankee Stadium. But he was instrumental in handling the Yanks their seventh loss in nine games as the Blue Jays defeated New York 5-1.

"This is better than winning the pennant," Velez said of the victory. "I feel so happy. I was trying too hard the first two times. I was so tight. I have nothing against those guys. I'm just trying to do my job."

Dave Lemanczyk, who came into the game with a 5.28 earned run average, stifled the Yankees on four singles while New York ailed the Blue Jays by committing four errors — three of them in the fifth inning when Toronto tied the score with an unearned run.

In other AL games Monday, Boston downed Detroit 5-3, Baltimore nipped Cleveland 4-3, Minnesota stopped Kansas City 8-6 and Seattle outlasted Texas 8-6.

A two-run homer by Butch Hobson in the sixth inning lifted Boston past Detroit. Hobson's shot over the "The Green Monster" — Boston's high left field wall — scored Dwight Evans and erased a 3-2 Detroit lead. Hobson also knocked in an insurance run in the eighth with a sacrifice fly.

Consecutive sixth-inning home runs by Doug DeCinces and Eddie Murray lifted Baltimore to its victory over Cleveland.

DeCinces' homer followed a leadoff walk to Ken Singleton and put the Orioles ahead 3-2. Murray's blast, his third hit of the game, knocked out Joser Pat Dobson, 0-1. Al Bumbry also homered for Baltimore.

Rod Carew had four hits, including a triple, and Lyman

Warrior Fan Arrested

OAKLAND (AP) — A 31-year-old San Jose man, his nose bloodyed, has been arrested for questioning about a melee involving players and fans at a Golden State Warriors-Detroit Pistons basketball game.

Dennis Ackerman was released from jail early Monday after posting $375 bail.

Police said he could be charged with battery and disturbing the peace in connection with a third-quarter fight during Sunday's nationally televised National Basketball Association playoff game.

Golden State's Charles Dudley and Detroit's Eric Money were swinging at each other under the Pistons' basket when players and coaches tried to break up the fight.

Some fans became involved in the fracas and one of them slugged Detroit forward M. L. Carr.

Carr later filed a complaint against Ackerman, police said.

After the disturbance was quieted, the Warriors went on to win 109-101 and advance to the second round of the National Basketball Association playoffs.

Broyles Sees More Passing Off Triple-Option Offense

By LARRY PALADINO
AP Sports Writer
Arkansas' Frank Broyles, one of the nation's most successful college football coaches ever, doesn't go along with those who think the triple-option — like the one used by Michigan — is dull.

On the contrary, he believes it's "the most exciting thing that's happened to college football" because "a long run is terribly more exciting than a long pass."

However, the next trend in the game will be to pass more off the formation, said Broyles, who quit coaching after last season and is now athletic director for the Razorbacks.

"I'm not saying these teams will promiscuously throw the ball — but they'll throw more on running situations," he told a gathering of sports writers and broadcasters recently at Michigan's Crisler Arena.

Broyles was joined by legendary Texas Coach Darrell Royal at the gathering. Both had been at Michigan for a high school coaching clinic.

Royal also quit his coaching job after last season and is Texas' athletic director. He wound up with a 167-47-5 record.

Among other comments made by Broyles:

—Violations of National Collegiate Athletic Association rules because some alumni

"accept this as necessary to win" are "a disgrace that cheapens the school."

—Recruiting violations "will never stop until you punish the athlete."

—The Big Ten and Pacific Eight conferences are dominated by a few teams and the others are usually "also-rans."

—The last NCAA convention was dominated by college presidents who "didn't know what they were talking about."

and the recently formed College Football Association will be an important lobbying organization.

Royal, meanwhile, covered some of the same ground. Other key items coming out of his question-and-answer session were:

—"Winning has become so glamorized. Pressure on the coach isn't to win ... It's in the accolades that come to a winner."

—In recruiting a coach feels "like an idiot" because "some 17-18-year-old kid tells 10 schools: 'Okay, I'm ready to let you know which one of you is lucky enough to get me.'"

—A larger investigative force "is needed on the national level to deal with rules violations and conferences should scrap their smaller investigative forces."

—The NCAA should give all coaches and assistants polygraph tests "as a deterrent" to recruiting and other rules violations.

Broyles, who said the Southwest Conference is the leader in triple-option football, said, "A team that throws 20 passes doesn't hurt you ... It's a team that can run and hit you with key passes that can hurt your defense. It throws them off balance."

He said Texas A&M, for instance, is liable to throw 12 passes against Michigan on Oct. 1 "and complete nine if they (the Wolverines) aren't careful."

Among the most predominant recruiting violations, Broyles said, involve the rule allowing schools to visit prospects no more than three times.

"No one's paying particular attention to the three-visit rule, which is tragic," he said. "I don't have any solution to it."

He said, "It's hard to legislate morals." Royal said, "We've got enough rules if we just abide by them. Every rule you pass you just hurt the honest people because they abide by it."

Broyles said six or seven Southwest Conference teams could challenge for the football title next fall. One of the reasons for the balance, he said, was that the schools have been heavily recruiting outstanding black athletes — an effort that wasn't made until recent years.

Gibson May Be Spartans' Tailback
EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — It's a measure of the Michigan State tailback corps that coach Darryl Rogers is considering shifting his star wide receiver to the key running back slot.

With the Spartans opening spring practice today, Rogers said flanker Kirk Gibson, the Big Ten's leading pass receiver last year, might get a look at tailback in hopes of plugging MSU's most glaring hole.

Meanwhile, the defense is as big a problem as tailback, he moaned, and two stars returning from injuries are still questionable. All in all, it sounds like another long season for the Spartans, who were 4-8-1 overall last year and 3-5 in the Big Ten.

"I don't see being that much superior to a year ago," Rogers said. "We didn't replace anybody (who graduated) field a new dimension, too."

"I don't think it's a radical move — he's just such a great athlete," Rogers said. "We want to use him the best possible way. If he's a better tailback than everybody else he might be there."

Rogers cautioned the decision won't be made until fall, when he sees what the freshman crop has to offer. And he doesn't know if Gibson in fact can make the switch.

A possibility for the position is Leroy McGee, a transfer student who starred at Grossmont Junior College in California. Entering its second season on NCAA probation, MSU was limited to 25 recruits instead of 30.

Rogers said the rest of the offense is in good shape, with conference-leading passer Eddie Smith back at quarterback, Jim Earley at fullback, and veterans at tackle and center. The receiving corps — especially with Gibson included — is tops, with tight end Mark Brammer and split end Eugene Byrd.

"Our greatest question mark is defense — what we have to do to win is improve our defense," Rogers said. And that may depend in large part on the recuperative powers of linebacker Kim Rowekamp and defensive back Tom Graves, who underwent knee surgery.

In addition, back Mike Imhoff will be coming off an injury which could slow him, Rogers said.

Northrup Sees No Pressure To Win

ST. LOUIS, Mich. (AP) — The Tigers are under no pressure to win — so they don't, says former Detroit outfielder Jim Northrup.

"Detroit can throw a last-place team on the field and still draw a million and a half people," he told the Morning Sun newspaper of Mount Pleasant while visiting St. Louis recently.

Northrup, who helped the Tigers capture baseball's World Series title in 1968, went to high school in St. Louis and to college at nearby Alma.

Northrup doesn't agree with the management to go out and spend money to get the players they need," he said of the Tigers, who have lost eight of their first 11 games this season.

"Now if Detroit was only drawing around 800,000 at best, like somebody like Baltimore, then the tremendous pressure would be there and they would go out and spend the money to get the players," said Northrup, who was with the Tigers from 1964-74. He concluded his career at Baltimore in 1975.

Northrup doesn't agree with the management to go out and spend a lot of money on players, but with the financial situation the way it is for the Tigers, there's no excuse for him not to do it.

"When I was playing in the '60s, Campbell wouldn't even talk to you if you had an agent. The owners were in complete control then and now that they've lost it, they don't like it at all. I wish now that I was born 10 years later."

"I respect Jim Campbell," Northrup added, "and he and I got along very well. But with such a fantastic franchise in Detroit, they shouldn't be where they've been in the standings the past few years."

WNOOPIN' AROUND

By JOHN VANDEN HEED

District Department of Natural Resources law supervisor Eugene Coulson is trying to clear the "fog" on off-road vehicle regulations.

"One might simply say your ORV must be licensed as a motor vehicle if operated on a public road open to travel by conventional vehicles, and must be registered as an ORV if operated off such public roads, except on your own property," declares Coulson.

If operated both on and off road, both a motor vehicle license and an ORV registration is required. Both types are obtained through the Secretary of State offices. Non-resident ORV registration is obtained through the DNR.

There are no ORV trails or special use areas on state land in southwestern Michigan. The closest places allowing ORV use are Silver Lake State Park and Brighton Recreation Area.

Motorcycles, trail bikes, three-wheelers, dune buggies and four-wheel drive vehicles are the most common types of ORVs.

The registration fee is $8 for three years.

Three hunter-oriented bills have been introduced in the Michigan legislature by Sen. Kerry K. Kammer (D-Pontiac).

Senate Bill 69 would allow the taking of two deer during a calendar year, but under separate seasons. A hunter would be allowed to take one deer during the regular firearm season and another during the bow and arrow hunt or the special muzzle loading season.

SB 70 would increase the cost of a non-resident bow and arrow hunting license from the present $20 to $40. Kammer says the increase would be consistent with the cost for a firearm non-resident license.

SB 71 is the "hunter orange" law, a requirement for any person hunting with a firearm to wear fluorescent orange safety material on a hat, vest or jacket. The bill would not apply to someone hunting wild turkeys or persons hunting with bow and arrow or the hunting of coyote, fox, weasel, porcupine, ground squirrel, red squirrel, bobcat or lynx. Similar legislation was originated in and passed by the House last year, but it failed to receive Senate action.

Legislation to raise the cost of state park motor vehicle entry fees has been introduced in Lansing.

House Bill 4293 would hike the annual state park fee from $5 to $7. The bill also would raise the cost of the daily park permit from $1 to $2 for Michigan residents and from $2 to $3 for non-residents.

The legislation also requires the motor vehicle permit and fee for state recreation areas and would authorize the Department of Natural Resources to use permit revenues for "operational and maintenance" costs in state parks and recreation areas. Present law allows the DNR to use the money for park improvements only.

The bill, which has the endorsement of the DNR and governor's office, is needed for a park budget which continues to come up short.

FINE FISH: James Dilts of Benton Harbor caught this 103-pound sturgeon while visiting Harry Eglin's doerfer, a brother-in-law and a former Benton Harbor resident, recently at Stockton, Calif.

'Everything Crazy Out There' Perch Added To Fishery

"That's crazy...everything is crazy out there," says district Department of Natural Resources biologist Dave Johnson on the perch fishery which has been added to this spring's unpredictable Lake Michigan angling action.

Fishermen were surprised when big chinook started hitting a couple of weeks ago but got another unexpected bonus over the weekend when perch started biting. Several catches of more than 100 were reported along the southwestern Michigan shoreline.

Perch fishing usually doesn't get underway until later in the spring, but Lloyd Mollhagen of Mollhagen Fisheries in St. Joseph believes he knows the reason the fish are showing early.

"The temperature of the water has warmed up and that has brought them in," declares Mollhagen, who says the water temperature went up several degrees over the past week and now stands at about 48 to 50 degrees. "Also, they've got to be hungry and are looking for food."

John Nielsen of B-J's Sports in St. Joseph says the perch, which are running from small to medium in size, started biting last Friday. The best baits have been nightcrawlers and wigglers.

The chinook fishery is still called "fantastic" by Mollhagen, and lots of fishermen are also picking up lake trout ranging up to 10 to 14 pounds. Trollers are working lures — the rattlespoon is among favorites — near the bottom in 30 to 60 feet of water.

Coho haven't shown up in the catch in as many numbers as past springs, but many fishermen are fishing deeper for chinook and lake trout instead of working surface waters for coho.

About the only thing Lake Michigan is not providing is a smelt fishery. Nielsen has heard of a couple of dozen being taken at Grand Mere but knew of no big catches.

"I think we are getting pretty close," says Johnson of smelt dipping. "They are talking about rain the next couple of days and that might be a triggering effect. But I don't know what to expect because we haven't had much of a run the last couple of years."

Meanwhile, steelhead fishing has been good on the St. Joseph River from Sportsman's Park to the Berrien Springs dam. A creel census at Shamrock Park in Berrien Springs from Friday through Sunday showed 236 fishermen with 110 steelhead. The biggest fish in the steelhead contest at B-J's Sports is still one weighing 16 pounds, 2 ounces.

On inland lakes, the DNR reports that bluegill success is improving as the water warms up.

Good Trout Fishery In Paw Paw River System

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the first of three articles on trout streams in southwestern Michigan by Paul Scheppelman, the fisheries manager of the district Department of Natural Resources office in Plainwell. Today's article is on the Paw Paw River system. Following stories will cover the Kalamazoo and Dowagiac River systems.

By PAUL SCHEPPELMAN

The headwaters of the Paw Paw River are in eastern Van Buren county. Its three major branches converge near Paw Paw, at which point the warming effects of an impoundment (Maple Lake) and other warm-water tributaries make it no longer suitable for trout. However, in this area it is excellent northern pike and fair smallmouth bass water.

At the town of Lawrence, the stream has once again cooled by groundwater inflow to the high 60's in summer and is capable of supporting trout down to the dam in Watervliet. As larger numbers of brown trout become available, this stretch should be stocked to establish the species in this area.

The lower section, down to Benton Harbor, is primarily a warmwater stream. However, salmon and steelhead runs are established.

NORTH BRANCH

The headwaters of this branch begin in some enormous spring holes (privately owned) north of the Wolf Lake State Fish Hatchery near the eastern boundary of Van Buren county. Below these springs it is known as Campbell Creek.

Within a half mile, at 28th avenue, the stream is 10 to 12 feet wide and has some nice holes below the road. The bottom is mostly sand and quite soft for wading. Brook trout are the dominate species, but there are also some nice browns.

Most of the drainage on this entire branch is broad flat elm and maple swamps. This causes the stream to overflow its banks quite frequently after a rain or during spring runoff.

Below Fish Lake road, it is then known as Whiskey Run, or the North Branch. From here on downstream, the stream is slower and deeper. In order to fish effectively, you should have an inner tube and waders, or with some difficulty you could use a canoe. The stream averages 25 to 30 feet wide and has a soft, sandy bottom.

Many good catches of brown trout are taken, especially early in the season. There are a few taken every year that exceed five pounds. Fish may be taken on all conventional gear, including flies. The bait fisherman may become discouraged at times because of the large number of chubs and suckers that move up from the lower section of the river. By the time you get to M-51 the trout have given way to warmwater species.

EAST BRANCH

This stream heads up near the Kalamazoo-Van Buren county line in Paw Paw Lake, which is a good producer of rainbow trout. It ends in Maple Lake at Paw Paw, where it meets with the West Branch. Some local people also call this Lawton Creek.

This is a good producing brook-brown trout stream, with brooks giving way to browns about midway downstream. This stream is 25 to 30 feet wide and it gives up an occasional large fish. The bottom is over 50 per cent gravel, which makes for good food production and spawning. Surrounding country is mostly grape vineyards, farm and small woodlots. The banks of the stream are pretty much covered with brush and trees.

Fishing techniques are up to the individual, as most gear is equally effective. The fly fisherman gets some good catches in May, June and July.

WEST BRANCH

This branch starts in southern Van Buren county, near Decatur. As it flows toward Maple Lake at Paw Paw, through predominantly farm country, it picks up a few nice spring fed tributaries. These improve the stream as trout water is in its lower four miles.

The entire branch was chemically treated in 1963 to remove all rough fish, and it was restocked with brown trout that same year. Some rough fish have come back, but it is still providing some fair fishing for those who work at it. It is part of the county drain system, so it is quite straight and has a sandy bottom. Most of the cover consists of countless trees that have fallen in and dug holes in the sandy bottom.

MAIN RIVER TRIBUTARIES

A significant tributary which enters at Lawrence is Brush Creek. Along with its two tributaries, White and Red Creeks, it produces some big fish. With much of the stream no wider than 12 to 14 feet, it continues to give up browns 16 to 18 inches and larger. This is partially due to the fact that the stream has many shallow gravel riffles that drop off into deep pools and undercut banks. These riffles also produce many aquatic insects for food. Most fish are taken on live bait, but other gear could probably be used to a more limited degree. Surrounding country is mainly farmland with wooded borders along the stream. As you go into Berrien county at Watervliet, Mill Creek enters. It starts in Van Buren county and flows through a heavily wooded area, draining many springs along its watercourse. The gravel bottom starts to change to sand as it flows through farmlands near the county line. The upper end is built water because of the heavy cover, but most types of gear could be used on the lower. A live grasshopper or one of the good imitations floated along the grassy banks in June or July is an effective technique.

The last stream to come in before the river reaches Lake Michigan is Blue Creek. Its headwater start above the site of the former Millburg State Fish Hatchery. By the time it reaches Millburg it has picked up enough ground water that it now averages 15 to 20 feet in width. From here on it becomes a good stream for most types of gear. There are many deep holes and clay banks so that you would want waders to fish effectively. Fish become progressively larger as you move downstream. Surrounding country is orchards, farmlands and woodlots. The stream bottom varies from gravel riffles to clay shelves and sand.

Fennville Rezoning Proposal Rejected

FENNVILLE — The Fennville city commission last night voted not to rezone a 12-acre parcel of land west of Reynolds street that had been proposed as the site of a 50-unit, $890,000 apartment project by Battle Creek developer Christian Dencker.

Dencker needed the rezoning from agriculture to commercial-multiple dwelling, to proceed with construction.

City Commissioner James Clurey said he doubted whether the city of 800 could support two, large-scale apartment projects.

At an April 4 meeting, the commission approved rezoning of five acres of land on North Maple street for a proposed 32-unit, $700,000 apartment project being developed by American Dwellings of Kalamazoo.

Last night's unanimous commission action against rezoning came despite threats of legal action from owner of the Reynolds street-area land, Miss Lesett Turcott.

She said she has been unable to sell the land because of its agricultural zoning.

"If you don't rezone, I can't sell. And if I have to, I will sue the city commission and all 34 people who signed the petition for the price of the land and costs," she told the commission.

She was referring to a petition signed by 34 people against the Dencker project. The petition was submitted to the council at the April 4 meeting.

In other action, the commission was told that the county is working on two fronts to try and provide more police protection for smaller communities.

Mayor Robert McCracken said community leaders in the county have been talking with Allegan Sheriff Robert Schra about more sheriff's patrols in the smaller cities.

Under one possible plan, Fennville would become a sheriff's department satellite station, McCracken said.

County Commissioner Robert Drew told the city commission that the county is working on a uniform traffic code which, if adopted countywide, would eliminate differences in ordinances between communities.

Also last night, the commission voted to buy for $1,398 a dump box for the cemetery truck from Neil's Automotive of Kalamazoo.

Intensive Reading Program Approved In Fennville

FENNVILLE — A proposal to upgrade reading of middle school students through a new program was approved last night by the Fennville school board.

The proposal was tabled last week by board members who asked for further study of the 1977-78 budget to see how much was available to fund the program.

The program, which will cost an estimated $6,500, will consist of daily, 30-minute intensified reading instruction for students in grades six through eight.

Supt. James Tackmann told the board that preliminary figures estimates show 1977-78 revenues of $2,439,000 and anticipated expenditures of $2,525,000 with the difference to be made up with a projected $70,000 balance at the end of 1976-77 school year. Tackmann said the budget figures were "guesses," and that final budgeting wouldn't be done until this fall. He said the estimates indicated the program was feasible.

A spokesman for the middle school teachers, Tom Lutz, last week told the board that reading levels for most students in the three grades is low and is hampering instruction in other grades. One board member, Clifford Paine called the program a "necessity" adding "I don't see how we can't do it."

In other action, the board voted to fill the position of high school principal from within the school system and set a special meeting for Thursday, April 21, at 7:30 p.m. to interview two candidates.

The principal's position is being vacated at the end of this school year by Albert Truesdell.

Last week the board came up one vote short of approving the in-system replacement when three board members were absent and one board member abstained from voting. Three members voted in favor of the issue, four were required for approval.

The board gave its approval for a summer migrant education program. Migrant program Director John Lancaster told the board preliminary figures call for a budget of $232,000 with funding coming under the federal Title I program. No school funds are used in the program.

Lancaster said the program funding will be about $100,000 less this summer than last because fewer children are expected this year — an average daily attendance projected at 400 compared to about 600 last year.

Tackmann said part of a district census required by the state will be gathered through the district kindergarten registration with other areas of data gathering to be determined at a later time.

The board approved a general health class, required for accreditation, for next year and approved purchase of 25 textbooks for the class.

The board approved a request from high school Principal Albert Truesdell to allow two student council representatives and their advisor to attend a national student council workshop in Malboro, Mass., June 26 through 30. The board agreed to provide a car and transportation costs.

The board approved allowing an additional vocal music class at the high school because the one class now offered has become overcrowded. Tackmann said Myrna Pelon, part-time high school instructor will have a performing group and a general vocal music course.

Bridgman Plans Hearing Over Railroad Crossing

BRIDGMAN — Skyrocketing cost estimates for improvements to the Rambo road railroad crossing led the Bridgman city commission last night to set a public hearing to gauge public sentiment on keeping the crossing open.

The commission set the 8 p.m. hearing for its next regular meeting on Monday, May 2.

During the session, it was reported that estimates for improving the crossing to meet safety standards, improve drainage and repaving have now been pegged at $78,000.

The city and the Lake township board agreed to a 50 per cent split of the improvement costs when originally set at $14,000. Since that time, the estimate from the Berrien county road commission first rose to $30,000 and then finally to the current $78,000 figure.

In other areas, the commission said that at the May 2 meeting, it would set a public hearing on a request from 14 Dune Vista subdivision families for blacktopping, curbs and gutters for Donna and Vista drives.

The 14 families presented petitions asking for the improvements to cost property owners 60 per cent and the city 40 per cent of the project price tag. There are some 25 residences in the subdivision.

Commission members told the petitioners that work on the project, if it was approved, could not start until July of 1978.

A proposed agreement between the city, Lake township and the Bridgman school district for extension of sewer lines to the new Reed middle school was forwarded to the township and the school board for consideration.

The commission approved payment of $6,000 this year for its share of the operating costs for the Lake township ambulance service. It has agreed in the past to pay 50 per cent of costs for the service.

The commission tabled until its June budget adoption meeting a request by the Bridgman public library board that a full mill be levied for operation of the library which is shared with Lake township. Mrs. Polly Gilmore, library board chairman, reported the library unit decided to seek the one-mill levy after she presented an annual library report. She is the wife of commission member Charles Gilmore.

In several matters relating to Weku beach, the commission voted to allow tent camping at the park if prior approval is obtained; adopted a measure that leaves fees for the park unchanged; allowed boulders to be placed in an area of steel pilings within 50 feet of the park boat ramp to temporarily com-

BARODA — The Baroda township board last night adopted as permanent an interim zoning ordinance governing planned unit developments and mobile home parks in the township.

John Shafer, trustee and township planning commission member, said the ordinance insures that developers maintain and follow a "comprehensive plan" meeting standards set forth in the ordinance.

The ordinance was approved after some discussion on its pros and cons. Shafer said the purpose of zoning is to maintain control and there's always an appeal process if an individual citizen disagrees.

Trustee Louis Schlutt questioned, "Why can't a man do what he wants on his property?"

The ordinance was approved unanimously by those members present. It will become effective 30 days after publication.

In other areas, the board approved a proposed township planning commission budget of $7,800 for 1977-78, an increase of $750 over the previous year.

Buchanan OKs Final Grant Bid

BUCHANAN — The Buchanan city commission last night approved forwarding final application for a $200,000 federal community development grant to the department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD).

The action came in a short, special meeting called to consider the application which has already been given preliminary approval by HUD. Consultants Leslie Cripps and Associates, Berrien Springs, were instructed to prepare the documents.

If approved, about $100,000 of the grant would be used to replace three existing bridges, two on Oak street and a third on Alexander street. The remaining $100,000 would be used for rehabilitation of substandard housing in the city, according to City Clerk Herbert Russell.

Under the new budget, $1,700 ($12 per meeting a member) has been approved as compared to $1,300 last year. The secretary's salary was hiked from $300 to $400, the chairman's from $225 to $300, and $100 was allotted for zoning board appeals meetings.

Other categories of the budget which remained the same were: Building inspector's salary, $1,500; legal expenses, $800; engineering and consultants fees, $400; supplies and expenses, $300; miscellaneous expense, $100; and the Berrien county planning commission, $2,000. The board also voted to contribute $300 to the Berrien county Metro Narcotics squad. Emil Nitz, township clerk, and Paul Hoge, building inspector, were named to attend the building officials' conference at the Cook Nuclear Center, Bridgman, April 27. Shafer served as temporary chairman of last night's board meeting in the absence of Supervisor Orland Mead, who's away on vacation.

BERRIEN TOWNSHIP

Committee Named To Study Addition

BERRIEN CENTER — A five-member committee was appointed by Berrien Township Supervisor Lowell Bruce last night to study blueprints and floor plans for a proposed addition to the township hall.

Named to the committee were Trustees Allen Enders and Robert Norris, Building Inspector Ray Himes, Planning Commission Chairman Lloyd Layman, and Robert Sommers. The appointments were made during a regular township board meeting.

The addition is to cost $30,000 and was approved during the annual township meeting April 2.

In other areas, the board changed its meeting night from the third Monday to the third Tuesday each month at least until April, 1978.

The change came at request of Bruce who is also president of the Berrien county fair board, because the fair board meets on Monday nights during the summer.

Several residents of Long Lake subdivision appeared before the board and asked that the board get from the county road commission the estimated cost of paving roads in the subdivision, according to Township Clerk Ester Sommers.

Bruce said once he gets the cost of paving for about a block-long section of roads, he will meet with subdivision property owners to see if they want to continue with the paving project. Property owners benefited would have to pay the full paving cost. Mrs. Sommers said.

Bruce also appointed a recreation commission of Brad Hocking, Carl Gostola, Mrs. Walter Ellis and Mrs. Sommers to study requests for appropriations from the Berrien Springs and Eau Claire parks and recreation councils.

The Berrien Springs council has requested a $1,500 appropriation and the Eau Claire council $1,800 for their respective recreation programs in which Berrien township residents share.

Township officials also announced, as a reminder, that as of Monday, April 25, the township will be using Medic 1 ambulance service instead of Action ambulance.

Himes, the building inspector, said that in March he issued 10 building permits for an estimated $54,000 worth of construction.

NEWS OF MARKETS

Stocks Heading Lower

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market headed lower today following President Carter's call for "strict conservation" of energy.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was down nearly 3 points in the early going.

Losers took a 3-2 lead over gainers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Analysts noted that the President's television address on energy Monday night went pretty much as investors had expected. But they said the strong wording of Carter's remarks nevertheless seemed to be weighing down the market.

Among other things, Carter said, "The energy crisis has not yet overwhelmed us, but it will if we do not act quickly."

Oil stocks losing ground included Exxon, off 1/4 at $24 1/2; Gulf Oil, down 1/4 at $28 1/2; and Texaco, off 1/4 at $26 1/2.

On Monday the Dow Jones industrial average dropped 5.00 to 942.76.

Losers outnumbered gainers by about a 4-3 margin on the NYSE.

The NYSE's composite common-stock index lost .24 to 54.70.

Food Firm Might Buy Out Gerber

NEW YORK (AP) — Gerber Products Co. of Fremont, Mich., the nation's largest baby food producer, might be purchased soon by Anderson, Clayton & Co., the Houston-based producer of foods, vegetable oils and animal feeds.

Anderson, Clayton said Monday it plans to pay $40 a share for the 8.1 million Gerber shares outstanding, a premium over the current per-share price of about $32 to $33.

Gerber "is a major food company, and we are a major food company that is trying to grow," Anderson, Clayton spokesman Robert H. Gersky said in a telephone interview.

Gerber Products also owns a life insurance subsidiary.

T.J. Barlow, Anderson, Clayton's chairman, met with Gerber Chairman John C. Suerth April 15 concerning the proposed offer. According to Gersky, Barlow "was advised by Mr. Suerth that Anderson, Clayton's proposal would be considered."

A Gerber spokesman said the company would have no comment on the Anderson, Clayton announcement.

Anderson, Clayton said it intends to begin the tender offer "as soon as practicable" either after it is declared effective under applicable laws or after Gerber's board approves the bid.

Anderson, Clayton earned $34.6 million, or $2.87 a share, last year on revenue of $739.3 million. Gerber earned $22.9 million, or $2.81 a share, on revenue of $572.4 million in the fiscal year ended March 31, 1976.

Three Oaks Sewer Extension Opposed

THREE OAKS — Three Oaks township residents living just north of the village limits here informed the township board last night they were against a proposal to extend the village sewer system to their homes.

Supervisor Robert Todd said that 37 of the 57 households in the proposed sewer expansion area in the township were present. Only one household indicated it was for the sewer expansion, Todd said.

It has been proposed that the Three Oaks village sewer system, which is being expanded into the township along Three Oaks road north of the village limits to Krueger road and then both east and west on Krueger about three-quarters of a mile. Expansion involving about eight homes along Chumbein road in the township, adjacent to the eastern edge of the village, has also been proposed.

Todd said the board would act on the proposal at its regular meeting in May. He said the board planned to follow the wishes of its residents.

Engineers from Wightman & Associates, St. Joseph, said it would cost each home owner in the Krueger road area $1,530 to tap into the system. In addition, each home owner would have to pay about $8 per running foot in connections.

A public hearing on the entire sewer expansion plan including the village's portion has been slated by the engineers for Thursday, April 21, at 7:30 p.m. at the Three Oaks elementary school gymnasium.

Niles Twp. Schedules Hearing

NILES — The Niles township board last night set a May 16 public hearing that could bring Sheller-Globe, Inc., one step closer in obtaining $1 million in tax exempt bonds to locate in the township.

The board said the 8 p.m. hearing is on the Toledo, Ohio, based firm's "project plan" on scheduled improvements to the now vacant Kawneer Co. plant on South Third street.

The Berrien county board of commissioners has already set an April 28 public hearing on the same matter.

Township and county approval of the plan would be the final step before a vote is taken at both levels on whether to issue the bonds.

Sheller-Globe has exercised its option on the plant and hopes the move to the facility can begin yet this spring. The firm manufactures a variety of automotive trim parts.

Beechnut Feuds With Gerber

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Baker-Beechnut Corp. has sued Gerber Products Co. of Fremont, Mich., for allegedly duplicating a container used for infant fruit juice.

Beechnut asked the U.S. District Court to order the destruction of the alleged Gerber duplications and to order Gerber to halt all further production of the containers.

Beechnut claims it has a common law trademark on the bottle design, which, in effect, means the company claims uniqueness but has not formally registered the trademark with the government.

The company also asked the court to halt Gerber from any further advertising of the alleged copy and for payment of damages, but no money amount was mentioned in the suit.

Beechnut is headquartered in suburban Philadelphia.

High Court Eyes OSHA Searches

By RICHARD CABELLI
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court has promised to weigh employers' rights to privacy against employees' rights to work in safe surroundings.

Its determination, due sometime next year, could decide how effective the federal Occupational Safety and Health Act will be. The law was passed by Congress in 1971.

The justices said Monday they will review a decision by a federal court in Idaho striking down as unconstitutional the way Labor Department inspectors have implemented the OSHA law on more than 400,000 occasions in the last six years.

"The three-judge court in Idaho said the 1,300 inspectors employed by Labor's Occupational Safety and Health Administration have to obtain search warrants before appearing at a business to check for safety factors.

In appealing that decision, the government said requiring field officers to get warrants would give employers advance notice, killing the effectiveness of surprise inspections.

Justice William H. Rehnquist has stayed the lower court's order pending a final decision by the Supreme Court. But under Rehnquist's order, inspectors still cannot enter F. G. Barlow's Electrical Contracting Shop in Pocatello, Idaho.

Barlow has raised the issue that a search of his business premises without a warrant violated his Fourth Amendment right to privacy.

Many small businessmen have criticized the OSHA inspections, complaining about what they called the high-handed attitudes of inspectors who can levy big fines for violations and even put small companies out of business.

About six million industry and business locations are subject to OSHA inspections. Government attorneys pointed out that about 14,500 persons are killed and two million injured in industrial mishaps each year.

The lower court's ruling "would seriously impair effective implementation of federal legislation designed to protect the health and safety of the nation's work force," the government attorneys said.

In other action Monday, the court:

—Let stand a lower court's ruling that set aside charges Pennsylvania discriminates against whites in the hiring and promotion policy of its State Police. The federal appeals court in Philadelphia had ruled that the claim of "reverse discrimination" could not be considered because the policies follow a legal agreement aimed at remedying past discrimination against blacks and other minorities.

—Agreed to decide whether Chicago may refuse a taxi driver's license to someone once convicted of an armed felony.

—Agreed to decide whether students at colleges and professional schools are entitled to defend their academic records in an administrative hearing before being dismissed.

—Let stand a California Supreme Court ruling that struck down a state law limiting the amount of money spent to circulate political petitions.

Crackups Hurt Two In Berrien

A 77-year-old Chicago woman was listed in "fair" condition this morning at Mercy hospital after a one-car accident about 2:30 p.m. Monday on I-196, Hagar township.

Berrien county sheriff's deputies said Magarette Pitchford was a passenger in a car driven by husband, Joseph Pitchford, 80, also of Chicago, when their auto struck a guardrail off southbound I-196 and skidded down a hill. No tickets were issued, sheriff's deputies said.

State police of the Benton Harbor post said Lee A. Pascoe, 26, of 1106 Lake boulevard, St. Joseph, was injured when the motorcycle he was driving collided with an auto Monday about 4 p.m.

Troopers said Pascoe sought his own treatment after his motorcycle collided with a car driven by Judy Y. Patterson, 37, of Berrien Springs, on Red Arrow highway at Marquette Woods road, Lincoln township. No tickets were issued, troopers said.

POLICE ROUNDUP

Stakeout Leads To Three Arrests

Benton Harbor police reported three men were arrested on charges of disorderly conduct (gambling in a public place) Monday after patrolmen set up a stakeout of the parking lot at the Brooklyn tavern, 379 Territorial road.

Police said McElrath Jones, 30, of 480 Cherry street, and Willie Settles, 25, of 496 Territorial road, both of Benton Harbor, and Lawrence C. Ewell, 32, of 650 Crystal avenue, Benton township, were arrested after a dice game was observed.

Patrolmen James Hartman and Delmar Lange said surveillance of the parking lot was established because of several complaints of loitering, drinking and gambling.

Settles and Jones were released after posting $100 bond each, and Ewell was issued an appearance ticket and released. They were scheduled to appear in Fifth District court today.

Police said the arrests were made about 8:30 p.m. Monday.

St. Joseph city police said parts valued at $130 were removed Monday from the engine of a car owned by Kenneth D. Fetke, 17, of 1477 East Marquette Woods road, while the auto was parked at St. Joseph high school.

Police said the car, which was being repaired by an auto mechanics class, was parked near the shop area when the

Manslaughter Hearing Postponed In Van Buren

By DENNIS COGSWELL
Paw Paw Bureau

PAW PAW — A preliminary examination for a Lawrence man charged with four counts of involuntary manslaughter that was to have been held today, has been postponed until May 10.

The postponement was made at the request of Van Buren county Prosecutor Ward S. Hamlin Jr., who said he will ask that either the state attorney general's office take over prosecution of the case or that a special prosecutor be appointed to handle it.

he defendant, Carl Friel, 35, was identified by sheriff's deputies as the driver of a van which was struck by a freight train Feb. 9 at the Chessie System crossing of CR-376 near McDonald, taking the lives of four handicapped adults.

Hamlin said that since he represents the county in a civil suit stemming from the accident, his prosecution of Friel is a potential conflict of interest.

Van Buren county, Friel, and the Van Buren Transportation Task Force, which operated the van service, are defendants in a $500,000 damage suit filed by Roosevelt Burrell of South Haven, who was injured in the crash. Burrell was a passenger in the van who had gone along to show the driver where the handicapped adults lived.

At the time of the accident, they were being returned home from adult education classes at Paw Paw high school.

Friel's preliminary examination originally was scheduled for last week, but was postponed at that time because his attorney, Gary Dunton of Lawrence, had a schedule conflict.

New Buffalo Turns Down Request From Teachers

NEW BUFFALO — The New Buffalo school board last night unanimously refused voluntary recognition of the New Buffalo Teachers' association request to be represented in the future by a regionalized bargaining unit.

The regional bargaining unit would also include teachers from Niles, Brandywine, River Valley and Buchanan and would be called the 5-C education association.

The board also authorized Supt. Walter Schwarz to demand a hearing from the Michigan Employment Relations Commission (MERC) concerning a notice he received dealing with certification of an election of the teachers to be represented by the 5-C education association.

Kidnaping Suspect Is Returned

SOUTH HAVEN, Mich. (AP) — A man charged with kidnaping a Van Buren County child under 14 is being returned to Michigan from Leavenworth, Kan., after waiving extradition, authorities reported.

The child remains missing. Leavenworth County, Kan., Sheriff Terry Campbell said Geoffrey Gordon, 19, of Breedsville, waived extradition after a hearing Monday and was turned over to Covert Township officers for the trip back to Michigan.

Campbell said Gordon was arrested Friday after he was shot in the cheek and hand during a scuffle at a Leavenworth club. The wounds were not serious and Gordon was released from the hospital Sunday. Campbell said he had no further details of the shooting.

Van Buren County authorities issued kidnaping warrants against Gordon and 20-year-old Judy Higgins of Bangor last week. The two were charged with taking the woman's 12-year-old daughter, Tracy Ann Higgins, from a foster home April 2. The child was a ward of the court.

Campbell said Gordon never mentioned Mrs. Higgins or the child after his arrest.

CONTRACTS RATIFIED
MILWAUKEE (AP) — United Auto Worker locals representing about 4,500 workers at three Allis-Chalmers Corp. plants and two warehouses have ratified contracts and returned to work, ending a strike that started March 3, company officials said Monday.

tion association. Prior to last night's board meeting, New Buffalo teachers again staged a "sympathy protest" march outside the high school. Contract negotiations are still unsettled at New Buffalo and teachers have been working without a contract since the beginning of the school year.

The board refused to answer a question posed by Jack York, a Michigan Education association representative, who wanted to know if it was true that the board has not reached a settlement yet, because it does not have the money available.

The board said an answer might entrap it, after Supt. Schwarz pointed out there were tape recorders being used in the room. An unfair labor practice suit is pending against the board, he said.

In other areas, the board also approved seeking additional operating millage at the annual school election June 13, but scheduled a work session for May 2, to determine the amount of the request.

The resignations of two coaches, Phillip Ness, varsity track coach, and Sharon Wisner, girls' JV volleyball and varsity track coach, were tabled.

The board did accept the resignation of Max Burnell as athletic director. Burnell will remain on as head football coach, however.

It was announced by the board that a special meeting would be held next week to name John Miller, assistant junior and senior high principal, as athletic director. The announcement caused objections from teachers, who claimed the position should be advertised during the summer months so all that desire can apply.

The board voted against granting an extension to the New Buffalo Teachers association for more time regarding grievance procedures. The grievance procedure currently allows the association 10 school days to submit the matter to a mediator. A grievance filed on the increment pay scale expires on April 21.

The board approved sending a letter of appreciation to Pullman Berry Co., New Buffalo, for its donation of a radial arm saw for use in industrial arts classes.

After an executive session, the board approved recommendations from the curriculum advisory council tabled at its March meeting and which included placing more emphasis on reading in the seventh and eighth grades.

Schwarz said that reading would be taught as a course in those grades next year in addition to the regular English classes.

Another course added to the curriculum in the high school is environmental science which is designed to study problems of the environment, including pollution and energy, from a science aspect.

IN ALLEGAN COUNTY

Trooper Says He's Bitten By Motorist

By TOM RENNER
South Haven Correspondent

SOUTH HAVEN — A state police trooper said he was bitten by a motorist he was trying to apprehend following a high speed chase over back roads near Pullman in Allegan county yesterday.

Trooper James Blair said he was bitten on the right arm by the motorist and his patrol car was extensively damaged when the vehicles came together during the chase.

Lodged in the Allegan county jail on five charges is Darrel Diephorst, 25, route 3, Fennville. He has been charged with assaulting a police officer, resisting arrest, attempting to flee a police officer, reckless driving and driving on a suspended license.

Blair, who works out of the South Haven post, said he attempted to stop a vehicle for a traffic violation on 113th avenue west of 57th street near Bravo at 8:05 p.m. last night, when the motorist fled. Blair said he chased the car approximately eight miles before he was able to get alongside the vehicle on 48th street south of 116th avenue.

The cars were involved in an accident at that time, causing damage to the sides of both vehicles.

Blair said he was bitten on the right arm while attempting to subdue the motorist. The trooper was released after receiving a tetanus shot at South Haven Community hospital.

Assisting in the apprehension were deputies from the Allegan sheriff's department and Casco township Constable Pat Carter.

South Havenite Pleads Innocent In Girl's Death

By DENNIS COGSWELL
Paw Paw Bureau

PAW PAW — A South Haven man was charged Monday on charges stemming from the Feb. 24 shooting death of a South Haven girl and the wounding of another man.

Lee Rogers Newman Jr., 26, 457 LaGrange, pleaded innocent to a charge of first degree murder in connection with the slaying of Jenise Lee Perry, 17, and innocent to a charge of assault with intent to murder Obie Franklin, 29, 951 Kalamazoo, South Haven.

South Haven police said Miss Peerry, of 713 Maple street, died after being struck by a rifle bullet that penetrated the wall of a home she was visiting at 410 Cable street, South Haven.

Franklin was wounded, police said, as he attempted to open a door of a car parked outside the house. Two other people, Ishanee Gill, 24, 561 Broadway, and Bonnie Franklin, 12, 410 Cable, were also wounded by shots during the incident, police said.

The shootings apparently stemmed from an argument between two men over a woman, police said.

Sentenced yesterday by Judge Meyer Warshawsky as the result of earlier guilty pleas to charges were:

Joseph Clyde McCloud, 18, route 1, Grand Junction, 10 months in jail with five days credit on a charge of larceny in a building, a water pump from a Columbia township home Feb. 20.

Virgil E. Hullonnan, 18, route 2, Watervliet, eight months in jail with 113 days credit on a charge of attempting to break and enter the P&J restaurant, Keeler township, on Dec. 13.

Roy Rolly Smith, 46, 601 Paw street, Lawrence, 33 days in jail with one day credit on a charge of attempting to carry a concealed weapon, a handgun, in Lawrence township Feb. 6.

Randall Routheaux, 17, route 1, Hartford, 30 days in jail, one year probation, and $100 fine on a charge of larceny in a building, liquor from Bishop's Inn, Sister Lakes, on Dec. 5.

In arraignments, Ronnie Ray Wireman, 30, Wise, Va., formerly of Lawton, pleaded innocent to two counts of second degree criminal sexual conduct. The charges involve a complaint by a Lawton woman that her two daughters, ages five and six, were molested in Antwerp township during the week of Feb. 17-24.

New Buffalo Turnout Is Zero Again

NEW BUFFALO — A second public hearing by the New Buffalo city council on plans for some $100,000 in federal revenue sharing funds for New Buffalo again drew no citizens here last night.

The council, at the first hearing last week, outlined plans for the funds anticipated for this fiscal year which include expenditures for city hall improvement and maintenance, streets, public health and safety and fencing for the water plant and water storage tower.

The council is expected to take formal action on the proposed expenditures at tonight's regular council meeting.

The council received one letter from Joseph Balsanek suggesting that $20 of the funds be earmarked for the library, but noted that funds have been set aside for the library in the regular budget.

Gets Action

A report of discovery of a body in Benton Harbor yesterday morning by a woman CB'er with the handle "Sweet Kitty" led to prompt action by police.

State Trooper Ralph Drumm said a woman using the handle "Sweet Kitty," broke into the emergency channel 9 to report finding a "body" off Valley View drive, near the Campus Q. She requested police, Drumm said.

Benton Harbor police moved quickly to the scene and reported finding a dead dog. Drumm said the report was received about 11:30 a.m. at the Benton Harbor post, which monitors the citizens' band emergency channel.

The county dog warden's office was notified to pick up the dog.

Patrick Richard Kane, 17, Dowagiac, pleaded innocent to a charge of breaking and entering a home on Huzzey lake near Lawton on March 7.

D. Marshall Kelley, 18, 82nd street, Lawrence, and Richard B. Farley, 17, 63rd street, Bzior, pleaded innocent to a charge of larceny from a motor vehicle, two tires and two "mag" wheels from a car in Bangor March 29.

Michael R. Prophet, 21, Lansing, pleaded guilty to charges of felonious assault and attempting to abscond on a personal recognizance bond.

Kazoo Man Gets Jail In Van Buren

PAW PAW — A 23-year-old Kalamazoo man was sentenced Monday in Seventh district court to serve 90 days in jail as a result of his guilty plea to an amended charge of attempting to unlawfully use a motor vehicle.

Judge William C. Buhl imposed the sentence on Alden Lee Baldwin, who had originally been charged with unlawfully using a car belonging to Bernice Grier, 106 West Willow, Bloomingdale, in Gables on March 13.

Baldwin was given credit for 14 days already spent in custody.

State police at Paw Paw said the charges stem from a September, 1974 incident during which a man allegedly stole a pickup truck in Mattawan, and then was pursued in a chase along I-94 that ended at a police roadblock near Watervliet.

Police said Prophet was shot after he had allegedly exited the pickup truck and pointed a gun at Tpr. Robert Rasmussen. The case had been delayed because Prophet had to be extradited from Los Angeles, where he allegedly fled while free on bond, according to authorities.
